SPEER OUT OF THE RACE.

A MOVE OF THE OPPOSITION TO CALL,

WHICH IS WATCHED WITH INTEREST.

Another Day in the Floridy Senatorial Struggle—The Contested Election Case, A Few More Ballots.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla., May 5.—[Special.]—The contested election case from Suwanee came up in the house today on a motion of Mr. Dougherty to adopt the minority report as a substitute for the majority report, favoring the seating of the contestants. Stapler, of the majority, led off in opposition to the minority report, setting forth the points relied on by the contestants. Dougherty replied, stating the grounds for retaining the sitting members. The lines are distinctly drawn for the battle to be waged tomorrow. The case hinges on precinct No. 2, where the original returns are charged to have been doctored, which seems to be conceded. And it is further charged that the entire election at this precinct was in violation of the law. If the precinct stands, the contestants go in; if thrown out, the sitting members remain.

The contestants are Call men, and through the high partisan feeling it is expected that Call will capture two more votes. This will give him 55 votes, the highest, it is thought, that he can possibly get.

An effort was made Saturday and Sunday to get a boom for Mays, of Jefferson. He went in the nine-hole last night and stopped. Speer's friends refuse to go to him. Mays comes from the same county as Senator Pasco, and he has other objections unfitting him for the coming man. Just now everything is as much at sea as at any time during the race. It may yet go by default.

SPEER'S NAME WITHDRAWN.

It was rumored around town during the day that something was going to drop in the senatorial contest. There was but one member absent when the caucus met tonight, and the lobby was packed with expectant citizens.

The Call ball was promptly opened by the hauling down of Speer's name by the anti-Callites.

Mr. Robinson, of Washington, promptly arose, and as soon as the chairman's gavel fell, presented the name of Representative D. H. Mays, of Jefferson, whom he characterized as a representative of the young democracy—one of the most successful farmers in the state, and a staunch allianceman of five years' standing.

The nomination was enthusiastically seconded by Messrs. Walls, Hammond, Rogers, Dougherty and Mann, of Hernando.

Senator Rogers, president of the State Alliance, withdrew the name of Speer and in reply to the charge of Senator Swearinger, that May's name was decided upon by a clique of politicians and a few alliancemen, replied that all the alliance members had been notified of the caucus in the courthouse in the afternoon, at which May's name was agreed on.

Three ballots were taken with the following result: Call, 50; Mays, 43; Speer, 1; Bloxham, 1; Long, 1, and two blank.

A LITTLE SENSATION.

Senator Coulter created a sensation hy denouncing Jenkins as a liar in the matter of casting the proxies of Messrs. Johnson and Peacock. The absentees left a written proxy dated May 2d with Mr. Jenkins, and a telegram was produced by Coulter, dated May 4th, instructing Jenkins to cast their vote for Call. Jenkins cast a vote each for Call and Mays. The Call adherents are now consulting over the new move of the opposition.

SENATOR COLQUITT COMING HOME.

His Visit to Hot Springs Has Restored His Health.

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., May 5.—[Special.]—Senator Alfred H. Colquitt, of Georgia, left for home today much improved in health.

When the senator came here several weeks ago his health was badly shattered. The reports published in New York, however, that he was in danger of death, were gross exaggerations; but his condition was serious enough to alarm his friends. Since coming here he has steadily improved, and all traces of his ailment have disappeared.

The senator was the recipient of many courtesies while here.

PENNSYLVANIA'S SHARE

Of the Direct Tax Fund—Instructions to Mr. Eagan.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—Secretary Foster today signed a warrant for $1,654,711 in favor of the governor of the state of Pennsylvania, that state's share of the direct tax fund.

It is learned here that the government of the United States has instructed Mr. Eagan, our minister to Chili, to offer to mediate between the combatants in that country in the interest of peace and good order, and that France and Brazil, the other great republics of the world, would have joined in the proffer of their good offices in the interest of the perpetuity of republican principles of government.

AMERICAN MEDICAL ASSOCIATION.

First Day of Its Meeting at Washington Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, May 5.—The American Medical Association met at 10 o'clock this morning. It was called to order by Dr. D. C. Patterson, of Washington, chairman of the committee on local arrangements, after which prayer was offered by Rev. Dr. S. M. Newman, of the First Congregational church. District Commissioner Ross made a brief address, welcoming the association to Washington and paying them a high compliment. Dr. W. T Briggs, of Nashville, president of the association, then delivered his annual address and the business of the association was at once entered upon with a rush. A resolution was adopted that the president of the association appoint a committee to petition congress to create a cabinet officer who shall be known as the secretary of public health.

The committee will report Thursday.

THEY WANT A DIVISION

Of the Appointment of Officers—Hitch in a City Government.

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., May 5.—Two weeks since the democrats elected a mayor, city clerk and five out of twelve aldermen, just the reverse of what was done four years ago. Then seven democrats refused to proceed with business until the republican mayor stated just how he would divide the appointive offices, and he was compelled to yield. Now, the republican seven want the democratic mayor to take the same course, but he refuses, and the outgoing council refuses to approve the bond of the mayor and city clerk until the matter of patronage is settled.

Yesterday the democratic mayor-elect took two deputies of his own appointing and, going to the city hall, demanded of the city clerk the keys of the safe of the office. The clerk walked out and kept the keys. The democrats have had several meetings, but the republicans stay away and there is no quorum.

Montgomery's Election.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., May 5.—[Special.]—The city election passed off quietly. There was no opposition to the democratic nominees, and only 800 votes were cast, not a single vote against Crommelin. Robert D. Snodgrass was elected city clerk.

THE CONTEST GROWING FIERCER.

The Situation of Affairs in the Coke Regions.

SCOTTDALE, Pa., May 5.—The contest between the striking cokers and the operators seems to be growing fiercer every day. Yesterday the Frick company added over 400 men to their list of Italians and Hungarians brought here to break the strike. Today the situation was reversed, and the labor leaders claim they are shipping them back in about as great numbers as the coke companies brought them in. Since Saturday they found 150 men willing to leave the region. Saturday 200 left Lippincott, and yesterday seventy-five left Whitney. Twenty of a carload at Central, left this morning on the first train. They were followed on a second train by twenty-five more from Leisenring No. 3. Thirty of the fifty sent to Redstone yesterday went to Uniontown this morning and telegraphed the district officers to come at once and assist them in filing a suit against the Frick company for breach of contract. Secresary Parker left on the first train and will place the cases in the hands of Judge Campbell.

Reports from various points in the region indicate that everything is quiet, although evictions are still going on. Over 100 families were evicted in the region yesterday.

WILL NOT CARRY THE RED FLAG.

Socialist Delone, of New York, arrived here this morning to hold a socialist meeting this afternoon. His followers say now that they will not carry the red flag in the parade, as talked of. It is rumored that members of the Grand Army and mechanics will resort to bloodshed rather than to see the red flag carried.

Superintendent Gray and Mine Bosses Callaghan and Agnew were given a hearing before Judge Ewing, of Uniontown, this morning, on the charge of murder, for the killing of a Hun named Mohan, at Leisenring on Sunday night. No evidence was produced sufficient to connect Callaghan or Agnew with the shooting, and they were discharged. Gray was released under $4,000 bail.

The twelve deputy sheriffs at Calumet works struck this morning because the sheriff docked them for the time spent at their houses.

THE DEAD AND DYING.

Ex-Governor Crittenden, of Mississippi, Dying—A Prominent Physician Dead.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 5.—Ex-Governor Thomas Crittenden was stricken last night with a fatal illness. He was taken suddenly ill after he returned from his office. Physicians were immediately summoned. An examination showed the ex-governor to be suffering from a ruptured blood vessel at the base of the brain and also from uraemic poisoning. The attending physicians say his recovery is impossible. Governor Crittenden served in the union army during the civil war as lieutenant colonel, was elected to congress in 1872 and again in 1876, and elected governor in 1880.

LOUISVILLE, Ky, May 5.—Dr. W. H. Bolling, one of the most prominent physicians in the south and dean of the university of Louisville, died this morning. He was fifty-one years of age.

A GRAND REUNION

Of North Carolina Ex-Confederates Next August.

ASHEVILLE, N. C., May 5.—[Special.]—There will be a reunion of the survivors of the confederate army in this state in August. The reunion will be held at Wrightsville, on the coast, on the camp grounds of the North Carolina state guard, and immediately following the annual encampment of that organization.

This state had 130,000 soldiers in the war—more in proportion to its population than any other southern state. Of this number about 30,000 were killed while fighting for their cause, and it is estimated that there are now fully 40,000 survivors of the state troops.

An immense crowd will be present, as this is the first reunion of the North Carolina troops. Many prominent men will be present, and will add interest to the occasion by speeches. Great preparations for entertainment will be made by the people of Wilmington, near which place the camp is located.

A MODERN ABRAHAM.

Mr. Jessup Erects an Altar and Attempts to Sacrifice His Grandchild.

BRIDGEWATER, Conn., May 5.—Oliver H. Jessup, one of the most prominent citizens of the town, has gone insane. He was taken violently ill a few days ago, but refused to allow a doctor to come to the house, and he relied solely on the faith-cure advocates, who surrounded his bed day and night.

Jessup at length conceived the idea that he was a second Abraham and that the Lord required a human sacrifice. On Thursday, being left alone for a few minutes, he prepared for the horrible affair by constructing an altar out of his bedroom furniture, around which he piled a heap of combustibles. Then he caught his little grandchild, a year old, and placed her on the altar and prepared to ignite it.

The child's cries attracted a member of the family, and the old man was nearly killed in the struggle to restrain him.

THE SCHOONER WAS LOADED

With Arms and Ammunition for The Chilians.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 5.—Ricardo L. Trumbull, of Santiago, Chili, representative of the congressional party, is in this city and explains the mysterious cruise of the schooner Robert and Minnie, which is at Gatalina island, loaded with arms and ammunition. Trumbull says the cargo consists of ten thousand 45-70 caliber Remington rifles and 2,500,000 cartridges. They were shipped by rail from New York and arrived here April 22d. Regarding the steamer Etata, now at San Diego, be says she came here for the purpose of obtaining provisions for warships now in possession of the congressional party.

A SCENE IN FLORENCE.

Two Merchants Take a Third Out and Whip Him.

FLORENCE, S. C., May 5.—[Special.]—Florence was treated to a sensation today.

Max Gumpert, one of the largest merchants in the city, was taken from his store and whipped in front of the postoffice by Stackley Bros., two other merchants.

The cause is unknown, but the trouble is believed to be the result of a too free use of tongue by Gumpert.

Gumpert was most severely thrashed. He has had warrants issued for the Stackley boys charging them with aggravated assault and battery, and suing for $10,000.

FIRED UPON THE BRITISH.

A Report that the Newfoundlanders Mean Business.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 5.—The report was current here last night that the British warship Palican, now in Newfoundland waters has been fired upon by Newfoundland baitcatchers in Fortune bay.

BOYD WAS UNSEATED

And Thayer Declared Governor of Nebraska.

LINCOLN, Neb., May 5.—The supreme court has rendered a decision ousting Boyd (democrat) from the governorship, and declaring Thayer governor.

HOW IS THIS FOR MAY?

SNOW AND FROST IN THE NORTHERN STATES.

GARDEN TRUCK AND FRUIT DAMAGED,

Unprecedented Weather—In Some Places the Fruit Is Entirely Ruined. News of Interest.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 5.—Farmers at market this morning reported heavy frosts in the country about here. Fruit blossoms are blighted, foliage withered, and ice half an inch thick formed. It snowed in the city this morning and the weather is blustering. Much the same conditions prevail over the entire northern portion of the state from east to west.

At Fort Wayne, Ind., a very heavy frost occurred last night. The damage done to fruit trees and garden truck will be enormous.

Ice one-half an inch thick formed at Kalamazoo, Mich., last night. Opinions differ as to the amount of damage done in the fruit belt.

The ground was covered with snow at North Troy, Vt., this morning. A light fall of snow is reported at Richford.

The thermometer at Shrewsberry, Mass., was three degrees below freezing this morning. Ice formed in the pail after sunrise. Cherries and plums are in bloom.

At Winsted, Conn., ice formed in pools all over Litchfield county last night. Cherry trees are all in blossom and it is feared the crop has suffered by the frost. Apple and pear trees have not yet bloomed and those crops are not injured.

A PITTSBURG BLAZE.

Destruction of a Seven-Story Building and a Church.

PITTSBURG, May 5.—A fire that broke out in this city about 11 o'clock tonight proved one of the most dangerous and stubborn the city department ever encountered. The first blaze was discoved in the lower floor of the great Arbuckle building on Seventh street, near Duquesne. It is occupied by the Grocers' Supply and Storage Company, and the seven-story edifice, 100 feet wide, and several hundred deep, was soon a mass of flames from roof to cellar. The heat was so intense that the firemen found it impossible to reach the building with water and in a short while adjoining buildings were ablaze and the entire square was menaced. A high wind swept the fire across to tee Pittsburg female college building, and when the walls of the Arkuckle building began to fall in, Christ Methodist Episcopal church on Pike avenue caught and both these buildings were destroyed. The losses are so widely distributed that it is impossible to secure them precisely, but will certainly reach $15,000.

At 1:30 o'clock a. m. the fire caught up a row of tenement houses on Seventh street. The other buildings being completely wrecked, the department turned their entire attention to preventing a further spread and at this hour it is thought the tenements and surrounding buildings will be saved.

THE PRESIDENT'S TOUR

Enthusiastically Received by the People of Oregon.

PORTLAND, Ore., May 5.—The early part of the journey of the president and party into Oregon today was made in a steady fall of rain, varying from a drizzle to a light storm. This discouraging state of affairs did not seem to dampen the enthusiasm of the inhabitants, and they paid the chief magistrate every honor at each place visited.

At Albany, which was reached at 8 o'clock, the president and all the members of the party were on the rear platform of the observation car and gave a hearty response to the enthusiastic greeting of the people. The mayor of the city introduced the president, and he acknowledged their cheers with a brief address. In closing the president introduced Postmaster General Wanamaker and Secretary Rusk, each of whom made a short speech.

The visit to Salem was the principal event of the forenoon. The president and party arrived there at 9 o'clock and remained a little over one hour. It rained nearly all the time, and interfered somewhat with the programme, so far as the demonstration on the part of the school children was concerned. The local militia, Grand Army of the Republic post and people generally were out in force, and gave the distinguished visitors a royal reception.

THE RETURN TRIP.

Following is the programme, as far as decided upon, for the return trip of President Harrison:

After stopping at Tacoma and Seattle, he will go to Salt Lake City, stopping one day at Boise City, Idaho; then to Leadville, Colorado Springs, Denver, Lincoln, Neb.; Omaha, Hannibal, Mo.; Springfield, Ill.; Decatur, Ill.; Indianapolis, Columbus, Ohio, and Pittsburg.

THE OBNOXIOUS TROUPS

Will Be Removed from Fourmies to Some Other Parts of France.

FOURMIES, May 5.—The workingmen's delegates, representing all the trades and labor circles of this town, called today upon the prefect and made the most respectful request, that in view of the peaceful attitude of the inhabitants of Fourmies since Labor Day, and in order to avoid the possibility of further trouble, the regiment of infantry which fired upon the people on May Day should be removed to some other part of France. The prefect, after consultation with the mayor, acceded to the delegates' request, saying that in consideration of the fact that they had called attention to the peaceful attitude of the inhabitants since the riots, he, the prefect would recommend the government to send the obnoxious regiment to some other part of France. It is also known that the military commander of the district is urging the government to transfer the now much detested regiment to some other garrison, saying that otherwise he fears there will be a renewal of the disturbances which led to the loss of life on May Day.

The debate in the chamber of deputies yesterday upon the subject of the Fourmies riots has considerably embittered the strikers, who have now increased their demands for higher wages Renewed scenes of disorder, it is feared, are probable in the near future should the demands of the strikers be refused.

TOM SMITH'S REVENGE

On a Tennessee Young Lady for Rejecting Him.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., May 5.—Tom Smith, now under a $10,000 bond in the circuit court of Lincoln county for the killing of young John Brooks about three years ago, about a young lady, is reported to have killed James Wakefield, whom she married since the first killing. Wakefield and the lady were on their way to McDowell's Mills, near Pulaski, to visit her father, when Smith met them, killing Wakefield and firing twice at his wife.

A Coke Famine Threatened.

CHICAGO, May 5.—The supply of coke in and around Chicago has almost been exhausted, and a coke famine is threatened. The Illinois Steel Company and the Calumet Steel and Iron Company have been compelled to abandon their furnaces for want of fuel. Already more than 1,500 men have been thrown out of employment by reason of the long continued strike in the Pennsylvania coke districts.

THE PEOPLE SUSTAINED

IN PUTTING AN END TO THE MAFIA CROWD.

WHAT THE GRAND JURY HAS TO SAY.

O'Malley Proves to Be One of the Worst Scoundrels Unhung—The Corrupt Practice of Court Officials, Etc.

NEW ORLEANS, May 5.—After six weeks' investigation the grand jury completed its labors on the Hennessy case and the killing of the Italians at the parish prison, by presenting a special report at 4:30 o'clock this afternoon. It is a very long document. Three thousand words at the beginning are devoted to the subject of the alleged bribery of the jury which tried the Italians. The grand jury is emphatic in the expression of the assured conviction that the result of that trial was due to tampering with the jury by Detective O'Malley and others associated with and employed by him. The method by which this conclusion is reached is stated, circumstances reviewed, and difficulties thrown in the way of the investigation set forth, and the report proceeds to say:

But sufficient evidence was offered by voluntary and reliable witnesses to justify the indictment of six men, as follows: Thomas McCrystol and John Cooney, with D. C. O'Malley, for attempting to bribe a talesman, and Bernard Glaudi, Charles Granger and Ferneard Armeant, for attempt by each to bribe three different talesmen. These parties are clearly shown to have been intimate with O'Malley, informed of all doings, and were active workers in the jury fixing business generally.

We are prompted to express ourselves in deprecation of the hesitation of many of our citizens to be connected with criminal prosecution by seeking relief from jury duty. Intelligent and law-abiding citizens, with those engaged in various enterprises of business and trade, must recognize the obligation, without which the guilty too often go unpunished. We urge them to cast off this repugnance, to rise superior to the annoyances attendant upon trials, standing up with a great majority of their fellow men in condemnation of the detestable practice brought to a high degree of perfection by the frequency of their practices which threaten to deaden and destroy the virtues of the criminal code to debase the temple of justice for ignoble ends and degrade the cherished right of "trial by jury;" that from the evidence, not only in the abstract in relation to each party, but in its aggregate and collective bearing, we are forced to the conclusion that Dominick C. O'Malley is chargeable with the knowledge of and participation in most, if not all of the unlawful acts in connection with that celebrated case. With his skill as acquired by years of experience, most cunningly devised schemes were planned and executed for defeating the legitimate cause of justice, the chief aim and object being to place unworthy men upon the jury in the trial of the nine accused. Without his assiduous and corrupting influence, we believe the verdict would have been radically different, and, as a natural consequence, the tragic occurance of the 14th of March last never would have been recorded. In the persons of the indicted, McCrystal and Cooney, there were reliable and trained assistants, and the former's connection, with some intermissions, extends back through several years. McCrystal's voluntary statement to the grand jury partly in the shape of a confession, reveals some points of the trial and causes us to think he would have told more but for the power and influence of O'Malley and his associates. We know that such influence has been used in connection with a friend of nine men lately on trial. Two men were trusted accomplices and figured throughout the whole affair with prominence, showing the high appreciation in which their services were held. They are men who approached several talesmen, as before stated, the proposals being mostly refused. In one instance it is shown that O'Malley took money from his safe and gave it to Cooney, who, saying, "McCrystol, you know that fellow better than I do. Give him money."

This was to complete the bargain reported to be made with a talesman who was shortly afterwards accepted as a juror. We cannot fail to refer to the intimate relations existing between this class of ward politicians and prime movers in all infamous doings; his office was the place of rendezvous; all were directly concerned in the appointment of a successor to the late chief, and speculation abounded as to the availability of such an one for their use. It was also important that the agency should be informed of the workings of city special officers, and O'Malley managed to have a friend appointed. He was assigned to the place and not to the detective force, when he resigned rather than wear a uniform.

From the beginning of our investigation, there is continuous evidence brought to our attention of the pernicious combinations of what is known as the D. C. O'Malley detective agency. It advertises in the Daily City Item and by the signboard at the office, that one of the ablest criminal lawyers at the bar is attorney for the agency. We know, for an absolute fact, that a bank account is kept and checks draw in the name of O'Malley and Adams, the interested parties being D. C. O'Malley and Lionel Adams. Such a combination by a detective and a prominent criminal lawyer is unheard of before in the civilized world, and when we contemplate its possibilities for evil, we stand aghast.

The report then sets forth O'Malley's criminal record previous to the Hennessy murder, from which it appears that he served a term in the workhouse at Cleveland, O., in 1875, for petty larceny, and that he was afterwards indicted in New Orleans for perjury in connection with that case, was indicted in the United States court in New Orleans for perjury, but was acquitted owing to the timely disappearance of an affidavit; was convicted to the parish prison for attempted blackmail; was five times convicted and sentenced for carrying concealed weapons; indicted twice and convicted once of assault and battery and twice indicted for attempting to prevent witnesses from appearing and testifying.

The report then adds:

So pernicious to the administration of justice were his doings and methods found, that while Judge Roman presided in the criminal court he ordered that O'Mally be excluded from the court room. This was during the time his present associate—Lionel Adams—was district attorney, and it is a significant fact that two indictments against O'Malley for tampering with witnesses were not brought to trial, but were nolle prossed by the district attorney just prior to the expiration of his term, and the inside view which we are enabled to get of the workings of this agency through City Detective Collins, abundantly corroborated from many sources, convinces us that it had at its command a band of perjurers, blackmailers, suborners and jury tamperers, and that it has for some time been an element of discord in this community and a stumbling block to the administration of justice which should be eradicated. That its career of crime has not been cut short is a matter of wonder, and is, no doubt, due to the fact that O'Malley and his co-workers have banded together for self-preservation.

The evidence is beyond question that O'Malley went up town in a Carondelet street car Saturday, the 14th of March last, in company with a party, reaching Fourth street shortly before 1 o'clock a. m.

The party was sent twice to Seligman's (foreman of the jury) house, after which O'Malley in person went to the house, and within a few minutes Seligman was running up Carondelet street and entered a carriage in waiting near the corner of St. Charles and Washington avenues. O'Malley was next seen walking rapidly up St. Charles avenue.

Were it possible for any doubt to exist as to the acquaintance and sympathy, or even closer bond of fellowship existing between these two men, it must be dispelled by the above recital, as showing the first thought and effort for Seligman, when O'Malley realized the danger expressed in thundering tones of popular indignation.

The extended range of our researches has developed the existence of a secret organization styled the "Mafia." Evidence comes from several sources, fully competent in themselves, to attest its truth, while the fact is supported by a long record of blood-curdling crimes, it being almost impossible to discover the perpetrators or secure witnesses. As if to guard against exposure, the dagger or stiletto is selected as the deadly weapon to plunge into the breast or back of the victim and silently do its fearful work. Revenge was their motto. Jealousy and malice speedily found solace in these methods, while the burning vengeance of the Vendetta sought satisfaction in the lifeblood of an enemy. The officers of the Mafia, and many of its members, are well known. Among them are men born in this city of Italian origin, using their power for the basest purposes, be it said to their eternal disgrace.

The larger number of the society is composed of Italians and Sicilians, who left their native land, in most instances, under assumed names, to avoid conviction and punishment for crimes there committed, and others were escaped convicts and bandits, outlawed in their own land, seeking the city of New Orleans for the congenial companionship of their own class. These men knew the swift retribution of law in Italy, for hundreds have been shot down at sight by the military in the mountains of Sicily without a second thought. Today there are recorded in the office of the Italian consul in this city names of some 1,100 Italians and Sicilians landed here during several years past, showing the official records of their criminality in Italy and Sicily. Hundreds of them are amongst us today. We doubt not the Italian government would rather be rid of them than charged with their custody and punishment.

Such is the well-known character of a part of the Italian colony, as it is called, who are domiciled in this city and its vicinity. It cannot be questioned that secret organizations, whose teachings are hostile to the fundamental principles of the government of the United States, must be a continual menace to the good order of society and the material welfare of the people. Whether the name of "Mafia, socialist, nationalist," or any whatever it may be, whether located in New Orleans, Chicago or New York, the meetings of their members create and disseminate seditious opinions with a manifest tendency toward overt acts, whose commission partakes of the rankest treason. We may say that many societies, created and chartered for the laudable purpose of exercising healthful influence in various departments of the body politic, enjoy hearty approbation and are productive of good results. But in marked contrast to all these is the Mafia, whose very thought and act are in opposition to law and order as contemplated by every nation of the civilized world, and in open defiance of the statutes of this state and nation and the cherished traditions of our people. Law is truly regarded as the emblem of the wisdom of all ages and its just execution the safeguard of society by the punishment of transgressors. Its just execution expresses the will of the people in condemnation of crime, but where this lofty principle is contemned by a practice of assassination for revenge or spite and concealment under most binding oaths, it renders powerless the efforts of the law to reach the chief actors, and to secure witnesses, it becomes the duty of the people, in the exercise of their sovereign rights, to issue their decree of condemnation.

That verdict has been rendered. The power of the Mafia has been broken. It must be destroyed as an element of danger, the creation of a leprous growth in this community.

Taking into account the mass of evidence presented, which is only partially summarized in the foregoing, it becomes our painful duty to make the declaration, most severe in its reflection upon the action of some of the jurymen. We are so deeply impressed with the facts of the case that the moral conviction is forced upon us that some of the jurors, empaneled to try the accused on the charge of the assassination of the late chief of police, were subject to money influence to control their decision. Further than this we may say it appears certain that at least three, if not more, of that jury were so unduly and unlawfully controlled. Some of the jurors themselves have testified, in most emphatic terms, that if it had not been for the persistent and well directed efforts of three of the jurymen, most conspicuous from the time that body was empaneled, the verdict would have been materially different from that rendered. This is a sad and terrible commentary from their associates on the jury as against those whose every action was intended to make them the controlling power.

It is certain that the special effort of counsel for the defense was to select for service on that jury such men as were of the acquaintance and well under the influence of O'Malley and his assistants, notably those talesmen who were on the detective agents' list. What can be thought when three of the jurors were accepted with only some unimportant question, or the clerk told to "swear" them without question. This is a proceeding almost unheard of in trials for capital offenses, but it has its meaning, as well as other instances have their significance.

One of the jurors, young in years, was by his own statement so susceptible to the influence of a dream that he changed his mind between night and morning. Others of the jury plainly stated that their age and inexperience did not qualify them to assume the responsibility of jurymen in that case. Impatience prevailed towards the close, and it is thought by several of the jurors to have hastened the conclusion.

Surely a remarkable jury, but fully competent to render a remarkable verdict.

It has gone to the people whose intelligence and virtue enable them to discern between truth and falsehood; to decide between right and wrong.

A thousand words are devoted to discussing the immigration question, and then the report deals with the lynching affair as follows:

In the presentation of the main features given to us as evidence, condensed as far as possible by the selection of the most important portions of inquiry, we have referred mainly to the evidence bearing upon the trial of the nine accused in section "B" of this honorable court, but directly connected with all these circumstances are terrible events transpiring on the 14th of March last, events which within themselves may be charged as directly traceable to the miscarriage of justice as developed in the verdict rendered on March 13th. We are deeply impressed with the serious charge delivered by your honor to this body on the subject, and at no time since have we lost sight of the necessity for a thorough investigation of all the conditions antecedent to it. We have engaged ourselves most assiduously with the examination of a large number of witnesses, embracing those who were present at the meeting on Canal street, and in the vicinity of the parish prison, as well as several hundred of our fellow citizens taken from every rank and class of society.

It is shown in evidence that the gathering on Saturday, March 14th, embraced several thousand of the first, best and even the most law-abiding of citizens of this city, assembled—as is the right of American citizens—to discuss in public meetings questions of grave import.

We find the general sentiment among those witnesses, and also in our interviews with people, that the verdict, as rendered by the jury, was contrary to law and evidence and secured mainly through designing and unscrupulous agents employed for the special purpose of defeating the ends of justice. At that meeting the determination was shown that the people would not submit to the surrender of their rights into the hands of midnight assassins and their powerful allies.

The assassination of the late chief of police shows the culmination of the conspiracy. His death was deemed necessary to prevent the exposure and punishment of criminals whose guilt was being fast established by his diligent pursuit. The condition of affairs as to a certain class of violators of law had reached such a state, that law itself was well nigh powerless to deal with them. So far-reaching was their power and influence in the trial of criminal cases. Good citizens were profoundly impressed by the repeated and signal failures of justice. The arts of the perjurer and briber seemed to dominate in courts, paralyzing and rendering powerless the ends of justice.

Certainly this was a desperate situation. In the public meeting above referred to, general and spontaneous in character as truly indicating an uprising of the masses, we doubt if any power at the command of the authorities would have been sufficient to overcome its intentions.

Evidence is before us from official sources that eleven persons were killed in the attack on the parish prison. In a careful examination as to the citizenship of these men, we find that eight of them were, beyond question, American citizens, and another had "declared his intention" in this court, which act carries with it a renunciation of allegiance to his native country. It is a noteworthy fact in connection with the uprising that no injury whatever was done to either person or property beyond the one act, which seemed to have been the object of the assemblage at the parish prison. We have referred to the large number of citizens participating in this demonstration, estimated by judges from 6,000 to 8,000, regarded as a spontaneous uprising of the people. The magnitude of this affair makes it a difficult task to fix guilt upon any number of the participants; in fact, the act seemed to involve the entire people of the parish and the city of New Orleans, so profuse is their sympathy, and extended their connection with the affair.

In view of these considerations, a thorough examination of the subject has failed to disclose the necessary facts to justify this grand jury in presenting indictments. Respectfully submitted.

PLANT MORE PEANUTS.

For Italians Are Coming by the Thousands Every Year.

ROME, May 5.—America is draining away the population of some parts of Italy with remarkable rapidity. The exodus is most marked in the Polesine region, on the Po, near Parma, where 400 out of 2,000 families have emigrated this year. Ninety-five families left Crespino together last week. Gavello, which a year ago had 5,000 inhabitants, now has but 800. Polesella has lost thirty-seven families, who all departed at one time.

SUICIDE OF A LORD.

HE CUTS HIS THROAT WITH A RAZOR

WHILE IN A DEMENTED CONDITION.

The Marquis of Queensbury's Brother Takes His Own Life—Gossip from All Parts of Europe.

LONDON, May 5.—Lord James Edward Shalto Douglas, brother of the marquis of Queensberry, committed suicide today by cutting his throat with a razor. Lord James Douglas had been traveling from Ireland during the night, and behaved in such a strange manner that the railroad officials, noticing that he was apparently in a demented condition, ordered one of the company's employes to accompany him to London. Upon his arrival in the city, Lord James Douglas put up at a hotel, and subsequently eluded his attendant and cut his throat.

Lord James Douglas was born in 1855, and married in 1888 Mrs. Hennessey, of Kensington court, London.

RUSSIA PUTS HER OAR IN,

And Says in the Behring Sea Quarrel She Is a Party.

MOSCOW, May 5.—The Gazette is indignant at the English and American press for ignoring Russia's connection with the Behring sea matter, and declares that any agreement made without Russia's consent will be worthless. The Gazette speaks with respectful sympathy of the American claims, and says it is time England was taught that the possession of an all powerful fleet does not entitle her to treat every bit of open sea as her peculiar property. The Gazette proposes that America and Russia settle the question with reference to England.

AMUSING, IS IT NOT?

SOME PITEOUS WAILS OF A RIDICULOUS FEW.

The Building Activity of Charlotte—Vigorous Demands in Real Estate—Good Opportunity for Real Estate Men.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., May 5.—[Special Correspondence Constitution.] — Dickens should have thrived in this day. This popular author, in all of his works, has shown a keen sense of the ridiculous, as well as a fine appreciation of pathos. Had he lived in Charlotte at this time he would have regaled the American reader with laughable portrayals of some of the most ridiculous specimens of humanity that ever furnished amusement for the irrepressible street urchin. Again, he would have depicted in lines of vivid sorrow a quintette of the most piteous specimens of assininity that ever freighted the air with their doleful brays.

Only five! How lonely they appear as they mope through the busy thoroughfares of this active city of 12,000 people! What abject creatures of discontent they seem as this splendid work of development nears the goal! How ludicrously insignificant they look, this quintett of "Jacks-in-the-box," as the lid of their hiding place is sprung by the child of progress! How distressingly pleasing their whimperings as the day of new ideas and refreshing results manifest themselves in this town of commercial prosperity! See how they stop their ears and cringe away in veriest fright, as the merry hammer sounds the note of building activity! It is the life-giving "zoon" of the electric line that sounds their death knell, and it is refreshing to note their agonizing writhings as the little negro, who is stealing a ride on the rear platform, derisively places his thumb to his nose and waves his hand at them! What a woeful fate! Utterly ignored is worse than being utterly despised. But will it ever be thus? No! The working element has decided to have a grand pyrotechnic display on the 20th, and it has been suggested that a platform of five corners be built, and on each corner be seated a (what shall I call it), —— will do, and the ubiquitous small boy, who is to be provided with an armful of Roman candles, touch them off with unerring aim until every vestige of moss has been singed off their backs. This will be a redolent foretaste.

Do you know that it is my firm belief that no "moss-back" will ever enter the gates of heaven? I believe that God's word is true! and we all know the punishment that befell the poor creature who failed to improve his talents. The Christian religion and the great work of improvement go hand in hand, and the man who leads a miserly life and lives on his community as a leach, cannot have a touch of Christianity. Did it ever occur to you that miser and misery both begin with "m?" I am not Pharisaical, but I would not take the chances of the man of pinched purse and non-developing proclivities,

"For all the wealth that sinews, bought and sold,
Have ever earned."

It has never been my delectable pleasure to meet this august body of distinctive—well, I won't say it. They don't like the presence of a developer. They seem to prefer darkness rather than light. But I have heard of some of their peculiarly original—you know they are always original (after the hackneyed order), and it would be interesting to the readers of that phenomenal developer, THE CONSTITUTION, to quote some of their highly seasoned novelties, but there is no space in a live paper for quotations from the tomb. Then it would not be consistent with the life of my subject to make further reference to this relic of a barbaric age. I merely mentioned them to show their utter absence in Charlotte, rather than their obnoxious presence. There is no room in Charlotte for these deserters in the army of development, nor can they thrive in this vigorous climate.

The active building operations of this city, and the growing demand for real estate, are two points that investors should weigh. There has never been anything comparable to it in Charlotte's entire past, and I measure my words when I advise any live real estate man who wants to make a fortune easily to come to Charlotte. Now is the time. You can get in on the ground floor if you strike it at once. Prices are becoming active and a vigorous demand is being felt, and there is absolutely no chance for a mistake.

I would rather own a building lot in Charlotte, with the present indications of immediate advances, than in any city of my knowledge. There is sure to be a jump in values and I would that I could command a surplus of $10,000; every dollar would go in Charlotte dirt. I have never seen a better opening for the investor or home-seeker—and more especially I have never seen as good an opportunity for real estate men.

Charlotte has over $12,000 in her city treasury, a debt smaller than that of any live town of her population, and a tax rate lower than that of any city of 12,000 people in the different states. I mean what I say, and challenge comparison.

Therefore, the cost of living here is small enough to attract any man who thinks, and they are coming. Investors are turning this way. And there can be no doubt of the most gratifying and hopeful advancement in the near future—an advancement that will overshadow the splendid work now going on.

If you do not come before, be sure to avail yourself of the great sale of lots at Dilworth, Charlotte's suburban villa, on May 20th, 21st and 22d. The company conducting the sale guarantees a return of transportation fees to every man who buys, it matters not how small the purchase. Thus it will be seen that an excellent opportunity will be presented to persons to visit the prettiest town in the south, free of cost, with an opportunity of making an investment that will pay handsome profits as sure as the world stands.

Those who miss the sale on the 20th, 21st and 22d will lose.

MACON'S GREAT SCHEME.

A TASK ABOUT ACCOMPLISHED THAT SEEMED HERCULEAN.

Ocmulgee Navigation from Macon to Darien an Absolute Certainty—A Coach Burns. Sale of Bonds—Other News.

MACON, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—If the citizens of Macon think that the scheme inaugurated several months ago by the Macon board of trade to give Macon another outlet to the sea, has been abandoned or for one moment forgotten, they are very badly mistaken, as developments of the last several weeks will testify.

The board of trade committee, Messrs. Rogers and Harris, has been untiring in its efforts to accomplish a task that seemed herculean at first. But it is now a certainty that their labors will shortly be crowned with a brilliant success, and such a triumph as it will be for our fair city no one seems to realize or comprehend except those who have closely watched these men in their efforts to lower the rate of freight from Macon to all eastern points and develop a local trade for this city that will prove to be as astonishing in magnitude as it will be remunerative to the whole section.

Think for one moment and calculate if you can the

to Macon. By close figuring it has been ascertained to a certainty that the opening up of the Ocmulgee will save her merchants and others interested not less than $300,000 the first year, which amount in round numbers will climb to $500,000 before three years have gone by. You may talk as much as you please about new lines of railway being beneficial to merchants in saving freights from the east, but it is an undeniable fact that as soon as they are completed they invariably pool their work, and the merchant invariably in the end gets the same old rate. And thus it has been, and always will be, until the Ocmulgee is opened, which THE CONSTITUTION knows to a certainty will be done in the near future.

The committee are continually in communication with Captain Carter. That gentleman promises to resume the work that was a short time ago

STOPPED BY HIGH WATER.

Thanks to the promptness of General Manager Hudson, of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad, the railroad bridge has been completed at Hawkinsville, and the whole force of hands have been running to the bridge, nine miles below the city. They are there now hard at work, and in seventy days that bridge will swing around with a draw. The committee are communicating with Mr. Hudson this week, asking, on behalf of the city, that the work be pushed rapidly to completion.

The enterprise and good spirit already shown by Manager Hudson in this matter proves to the committee that if men and money can accomplish anything, they will be furnished in bountiful supply.

The committee last evening gave an audience to a committee of boat owners, who are ready with their steamer to come at a moments' notice. One of the owners stated that there is enough trade alone in hard woods between here and Hawkinsville to give business to a half dozen boats. One of the largest steamers is now on her way to Bullard's station, where she will take on a load for points below. She will arrive there Tuesday next. This point is but thirty miles below the city, and the owner states that as soon as he can get under the bridge, which he hopes to do in ninety days, he will, with several other steamers, make regular trips to the city and compete for Macon's business. The board of trade committee propose to celebrate the advent of the first five steamers (which will proceed up the river in line) with a salute of 100 guns of artillery, and inaugurate from that very moment for this city the most sanguine of her citizens never before dreamed of. Now let this town wake up and back their committee, and let us have such a jubilee as will turn our sister cities green with envy. Now let Macon merchants show their pluck, spirit and energy if they have any. The committee promises the citizens that they intend to have no let up in this matter until their efforts are crowned with success.

A NEW ERA

THE BONDS WERE SOLD.

Attorneys Received a Fee of Twelve Thousand Dollars.

MACON, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Readers of THE CONSTITUTION have been made advised of the suit of Gray vs. Cotton States Life Insurance Company for the recovery of certain bonds of the Vicksburg and Meridian railroad, which had been delivered to the Cotton States Life Insurance Company by its late secretary, George S. Obear. The judgment of the court was in favor of the plaintiff. The judgment was settled today. Receiver John Peabody came over from Columbus and turned over the bonds to the amount of $24,000, together with $750 cash. The exact value of the bonds is not known here. Roland Ellis and Dessau & Bartlett were attorneys for plaintiff. Half of the bonds were delivered to Attorney Ellis today as fee. He thinks the bonds are worth about fifty cents on the dollar.

Nineteen bonds of the Vicksburg and Meridian road, not held by Ellis, were sold at public outcry today to J. Rhodes Browne, of Columbus, at $50 per bond. Five were sold to D. J. Ball at $51.

THE MACON BASEBALLISTS

Return From Charleston and Savannah—Atlanta Versus Macon.

MACON, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The Macon baseballists have returned from Savannah and Charleston. They feel confident of being able to defeat any amateur club in the state. The Macon team say "the New York Giants could not have won in Charleston." It is not too much to say that the Macons were slaughtered in Charleston by the umpire. Charleston has a strong team, but the Macons can defeat them on neutral ground, and in all probability the game will be played at Augusta or Savannah for a purse and the gate receipts.

Tomorrow afternoon the Macon and Atlanta clubs will play at Central City park for a purse of $100. Macon will make a hard fight to win tomorrow.

The Furnace in Blast.

ROME, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Fire has been kindled in the new furnace, and everything is stirring there today. A large force of hands are at work, and the machinery is being put in readiness. Tomorrow it is expected that the furnace will go regularly into blast. Ore is being prepared today, and the coal and limestone are all ready. The furnace will be run at full capacity. The capacity is eighty tons per day of charcoal iron. Iron of this character will be cheap at $20 per ton, and an output of eighty tons per day will be between $1,500 and $2,000 per day that will be produced by this new industry.

A large number will be present to witness the first cast.

Floyd County's New Courthouse.

ROME, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The county board of commissioners met today and considered the building of a new courthouse. A $75,000 courthouse is to be erected. There are a number of contractors who have submitted plans, Dietz & Bro., of Rome, having one of the handsomest, and they will probably get it. The site is to be changed from the present one. The new site is on Fifth avenue, and purchased from J. A. Bale, for $10,000. Bonds have been decided as the way to raise the money, instead of direct taxation. The work is to be started at once.

Found in the Rafts.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The body of another dead negro has been discovered in the rafts several miles below this city. It is supposed to have been one of the negroes drowned above here in February. The body was found in a heap of driftwood in an old swamp, about a mile from the main channel of the river. This is the third negro that has been found in similar condition recently, and is the last of the four who were drowned while crossing the river in a drunken frolic.

Off for Macon.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Palestine Commandery Knights Templar left tonight for Macon.

AT A BARBECUE.

THE DRUMMER BOYS EATING ROAST PIG.

What the Traveling Men Did at Their Meeting Yesterday — Presentation of the Badge, Etc.

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The drummers got down to hard work today. Their visit is not altogether for fun, as many of them have come to transact business for the good of the association.

The second session of the convention was opened at 9:30 o'clock this morning with prayer by Rev. T. M. Lowry, chaplain of the association. The committee appointed to investigate Secretary Watts's reports made a report in which they severely rebuke that officer. It is said that the secretary has been considerably lax in the performance of his office, for which they censure him, but recommend that the association show its sympathy for errors and dereliction of duty.

The expenses of the representative to the National Travelers' Protective Association at Denver in 1890 were ordered paid upon presentation of proper vouchers.

Several other important features were called up, but action deferred until tonight's session. The insurance feature of the association was presented and unanimously adopted. Attorney W. H. Fleming was instructed to prepare policies and contracts of an endowment insurance for $500 in case of death. The insurance fund will be raised by the drummers paying $5 annual dues and if necessary 25 cents additional will be assessed upon each member, in case the fund becomes exhausted before the end of the fiscal year.

A number of changes were made in the constitution and by-laws.

The presentation of a diamond badge to Mr. Tom W. Jackson, of Atlanta, who was voted the most popular drummer of the association, was made this morning, and that clever gentleman now wears the handsome testimonial of his popularity upon the lappel of his coat.

At 1 o'clock the drummers boarded the electric cars and went out to Schuetzen platz where they were right royally entertained at the finest barbecue of the season. It was an elegant collation and immensely enjoyed. Toasts were made by all the drummers and a jolly good time was enjoyed.

The best remark got off was made by Mr. Hy Lansdall, of Rome, who, in toasting his city, said Rome was growing so rapidly that in a few years Atlanta and Chattanooga would be Rome's suburbs. That brought down the house.

President Weissieger was presented by the drummers with a handsome gold-headed cane as a testimonial of their appreciation of the valuable services he has rendered the association. The boys returned to the city last evening and will hold another session at 8 o'clock tonight.

Heavyweights from Augusta posts will engage in a game of ball tomorrow afternoon.

The Night Session.

At tonight's session, the drummers adopted a resolution favoring tariff reform and reciprocity; also endorsing the Drummer's Bank to be started in Atlanta and pledging their support to the new enterprise. Charleston drummers telegraphed regrets at not sending a delegation to the convention so their branch could join the association, and expressed their best wishes. Officers will be elected in the morning.

WHAT WILL THEY DO

To Make the Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville Pay?

AUGUSTA, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The Augusta, Gibson and Sandersville railroad is still in default of paying the January interest on its bonds, but the chance of an early settlement of some kind is good.

Your correspondent received this information ex-cathedra. There is no doubt now but what the narrow gauge road is owned by the Central railroad, though it stands in the name of Swann, Stetson and other gentlemen friends of the Central. When they bought it they bought a pig in a bag, they say, as they had not gone over or seen the road, and only took it in on speculation which had not been very profitable to them.

After the road was purchased the new owners went over it and thoroughly examined the road, and they found it could not be made to pay, as it was only a local road without any connections, and that they had made a bad trade. They had bought up the full issue of the second mortgage bonds, $135,000, at fifty cents on the dollar, which was equal to $60,000. They had to spend $45,000 more on the road in paying back interest and the floating debt. For repairs to trestles, putting in new crossties and fixing bridges they had to expend $60,000 more, which makes a total of $120,000 that the owners have expended since they took charge of the road a year ago.

The owners are now debating in their minds whether they will lose the $120,000 they have sunk in the road, or whether they will broaden the gauge and tack it on to the Central at Tennville. The extension from Sandersville, the present terminus of the road, to Tennville would not exceed two miles. By the extension they would thus make it a feeder of the Central system, and they say as a local or narrow gauge road it cannot support itself, and not even earn operating expenses, to say nothing about paying $24,000 interest annually on the bonds. They believe that with the gauge broadened and the road made a feeder to the Central road, it can earn 5 per cent interest certain, and they are now considering the matter carefully, and in a few days a corps of competent engineers will survey the road from Augusta to Sandersville and ascertain how much it will take to broaden the gauge, straighten the curves, put up substantial trestles, iron bridges and equip the road, making it a first-class standard gauge road. If the engineer's estimate is not too large, and it will not exceed more than $12,000 a mile, the chances are they will issue new bonds bearing 5 per cent interest, long date guaranteed Richmond and Danville by the Central railroad. They will offer these new bonds to the old bondholders in exchange for old ones, paying them the differences in back interest in money. If the old bondholders accept the new bonds in exchanges, all right; if not, then they will force the old road to go to sale and purchase it on the best terms that can be made.

Some of the Central railroad people claim that it is best for them to lose the entire $120,000 already invested and let it go by the board as a bad speculation.

It is thought that the plan of broadening and extending the road will be adopted, and your correspondent heard a bondholder today say that he would surrender his old bonds for new 5 per cent guaranteed ones, for then he could sell them at par. It is almost certain that other bondholders will do the same. If the extension is made the Central road will have two branch roads entering Augusta from the main line.

AN AMATEUR OPERA COMPANY.

Nat D. Russell, business manager; W. T. Glover, R. S. French, stage managers; Professor Conrad Wirtz, musical director; J. A. McDuffie, leader of orchestra.

The name selected is the Brunswick Amateur Opera Company.

The first opera to be sang is the "Tycoon," which will be given the latter part of May.

The best people of Brunswick, both male and female, have signed for parts and some splendid singing is promised.

By Eating Canned Peaches.

SOCIAL CIRCLE, Ga., May 5—[Special.]—The family of a prominent merchant of this place, Mr. M. E. Mobley, wife and child, and a sister of his wife, Miss Smith, were seriously poisoned by eating canned peaches. The physician thinks they are out of danger now

THREE TO HIS BOW.

A GEORGIAN WHO HAS ELOPED WITH THREE VICTIMS,

But Not Before the People of the Neighborhood Had Brought Hickory Withes Into Use—A Bad State of Morals.

MONTEZUMA, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The departure of C. M. Faulk for the far west, carrying with him three victims of his passion, culminates an ugly state of affairs which has for sometime existed around Snow, in Dooly county. The story of his crime, as stated by The Record, is sensational.

For years Faulk has been defying public opinion, outraging decency and making the community smell bad generally on account of his ugly conduct. He had prostituted two or three young girls who resided near him, and the patience of the neighbors became threadbare after a long time. A band of white caps was formed, though they wore no masks, to rid the community of such undesirable people. They tried to catch Faulk at the house several times, but he was entirely too slick for them. He heard that they were after him and he remained away from their home for some time. As soon as the matter quieted down he went there again, but was not caught. These citizens openly declared their purpose and made no special secret of their work to get rid of a vicious and demoralizing set, and went to the home of the girls, took them out and chastised them very severely, giving them a certain length of time to leave the county. They wanted to punish Faulk too, but could not apprehend him. Faulk has a family, and his wife owns a good farm, and has unlimited credit with merchants in Montezuma. She is a good woman and has the respect of all her neighbors.

In commenting on this incident The Record is moved to say:

We know of other communities where vigilance committees could do good work in ridding the country of very undesirable people, who, if possible, are worse than the Dooly county case. The grand jury has never yet done its duty and the foul business goes on unmolested. It is said that there are many cases where white men are living with negro women, raising children and making no effort to conceal their violation of the law, good society and good morals. Vigilance committees would afford relief not now given to good citizens, because the law is not enforced as it should be. Such organizations would have a decided effect on the vicious and evil disposed in every community, and by the combined will of thirty-five or forty men who are bound together to prosecute evil-doers to the full extent of the law. So long as vigilance committees confine their efforts to purifying a community within legal bounds, they will prove a power for good, but they should be careful not to go outside of lawful methods.

WILL TRY IT AGAIN.

A Petition in Gwinnett for a Local Option Election.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The following printed matter is in the hands, on a blank sheet, of various people in Gwinnett and is being thoroughly circulated, to wit:

GEORGIA, Gwinnett County—To the Ordinary of Said County: The undersigned, one-tenth of the voters who are qualified to vote for the members of the general assembly, in said county, petition your honor to order another election in said county, under the general local option liquor law, approved September 18, 1885, in the manner and form therein provided, two years having elapsed since the last election.

This will be the fourth election on this question—the three previous all having gone wet. It is believed by many that it will go dry this time, on account of so much trouble growing out of the riots occasioned by whisky on the line of the new railroad, and on account of the little grog shops in the county as well as the bars in the incorporated towns.

THE BOYS IN CAMP.

Moreland Park Cadets on St. Simon's Island.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—One of the most thoroughly established encampments over on the beach of old St. Simon's is that of the Moreland Park Cadets, of Atlanta.

The boys arrived here yesterday morning, sixty strong. At the island they found their tents already pitched and a steaming breakfast awaiting them.

The tents, fourteen in all, are on the grounds prepared for the state encampment in 1888, just beneath the St. Simon's lighthouse. I visited the boys this afternoon and found them enjoying the invigorating sea breezes and the numerous other pleasures of this delightful resort. The scene presented, upon approaching the camps from ocean pier, is picturesque and beautiful. The boys can be seen sitting in groups about under the live oaks and some were seen fishing from the pier. Many citizens of Brunswick go down to the island daily to visit the boys, and all are made to feel perfectly at home. The cadets are making a fine impression here, and their splendid drilling is winning them compliments on all sides.

The names of the cadets here and officers, and the ladies and gentlemen accompanying them, are:

Captain—John R. Doles.

Lieutenants—H. B. VanDyke, L. W. Caffy.

Sergeants—Morris, Reynolds, Everett.

Corporals—Pearce, Redding, Dennis, Finkell, Grass.

Privates—Ansley, J. Ansley, Stewart, Raine, Bush, Harrison, Cater, Lochrane, Stiles, Worther, Madden, Turner, Rrown, Wood, Fowler, Hopkins, DeWolf, Boyd, Houston, Jones, E., Jones, J., Johnson, Morris, Waddell, McBride, Emery, DeLoach, Coffey, Flake, A., Flake, C., Ezzard, Gunn, Gowen, Welch, Morton, Minor, Camp and Livingston.

Those accompanying the boys are: Mrs. Reynolds, wife of President John H. Reynolds, of the First National Bank, of Rome; Mrs. Armstrong, of Chattanooga; Mrs. J. B. Felder, of Atlanta; Miss Mary Neal, of Atlanta; Miss Allene Walker, of Monroe; Mr. H. Emery and lady, and two daughters, of Atlanta; Judge J. W. Branham and wife, of Oxford, and Mr. F. W. Ezzard, lady and two daughters, Cumming.

The cadets will be here for ten days.

HE ROBBED THE POSTOFFICE.

Arrest of a Young Man With Uncle Sam's Property in His Possession.

ROSWELL, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—At Mr. J. N. Darvis's mills, on Little river, the county line between Cherokee and Milton counties, Arnold's postoffice is kept. Mr. Gregory, the miller, is also the postmaster. For some time Mr. Gregory has been missing corn and meal and postage stamps and money out of the office and mill. This caused him to keep a close watch over the mill. On Sunday he went to the mill and found a young white man, by the name of Oscar Swofford, in the mill, with the money that belonged to the postoffice, and also some stamps on his person. A warrant was sworn out for young Swofford. He was carried before Justice Mastillo, of Little river district, and committed to jail in Alpharetta. Young Swofford is about seventeen years old, and is of a good family, and has been well respected up to this time.

Edwards was Acquitted.

ALBANY, Ga., May 5.——[Special.]—Parties returning from Baker superior court tonight, report that in the trial of Colonel Edwards for the murder of Louis Barbre, Edwards was acquitted. The murder was committed last December at Newton, and Edwards has been in Dougherty county jail since the crime was committed. As soon as Edwards was acquitted he was immediately rearrested upon a charge of carrying concealed weapons, but gave bond and returned to his home. Colonel A. R. Hawes, of Bainbridge, was his lawyer.

THE LIGHTNING ROD

GETS A CHURCH MEMBER INTO TROUBLE.

He Is on Trial Charged with Interfering with the Will of God—If Lightning Comes, No Man Should Say Nay.

AMERICUS, Ga., May 5.—For resistance to the will of God a prominent citizen near Andersonville is under trial.

It is a church trial, and the church is located just five miles above Andersonville.

The church is of the Hardshell Baptist denomination, and the accused is a well-to-do and well-known gentleman living at Andersonville.

The charge preferred against him is putting lightning rods on his house, thus seeking to interfere, as they construe it, with the will of God.

The Times, in telling the story, says that Mr. J. J. Dukes has scores of friends in Americus and all this section. He is a man of ability and has made quite a success in farming. Not long since he had a neat home built, and had it fitted up in a nice and comfortable manner. As is usual, he had hardly completed his building before the irrepressible lightning rod agent put in his appearance, and with suave manner and smooth language brought forth the countless reasons why protection should be sought from the electrical element. Mr. Dukes finally decided to accept the offer, and soon had the little steel points reaching out from the house.

He has for years been a member in good standing of the Hardshell church just north of this place, and after having the work done continued to attend faithfully services and perform his duties as a member. His co-workers in the church, however, viewed with great concern the heretical performance above mentioned, and many of the good sisters and brethren argued with him to have the rods removed. The watchful pastor talked and prayed with the wanderer from his flock, but all to no purpose. Mr. Dukes couldn't see the harm and the rods remained.

Finally the matter had gone as far as the church, as a body could permit, and a meeting was held to discuss it. They sent committee after committee to the wayward brother, but all to no purpose, and then it was decided to make a test case of the matter. A committee was sent to him a short time since, to inform him that early in May he would be tried by the church for going contrary to the doctrine he professed.

In this case they hold that the will of God has been interfered with, and thus the brother has done an action for which he must answer to the church.

THE NEWS FROM COLUMBUS.

Arrest of a Bad Negro—A Pipe Causes a Blaze, Etc.

COLUMBUS, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Jerry Adams was arrested here today by Sheriff Ragland, of Russell county. Jerry is a bad negro and is wanted in Alabama for grand larceny. He will be held to await the arrival of an officer and no requisition will be necessary, as the negro is willing to return without it.

Some excitement was created in the neighborhood of Sixth avenue today by the report that a baby had been burned to death in a house that was on fire. An alarm was turned on and the department was out, but the flames were quickly extinguished. It appears that Jennie McKenzie, a negro, had laid her baby on the bed and placed her pipe, which she had been smoking, against the footboard while she went to attend to some duty.

The movement of the baby overturned the pipe and the burning tobacco set fire to the bedding which was soon in flames. When the discovery was made, some neighbors snatched the child from the blazing bed and saved it with a slight scorching.

Today at the union depot J. B. Tyler, a freight train flagman, was attacked with a severe hemorrhage, and nearly bled to death before medical assistance was obtained and he was sent to his home. He was very low at a late hour tonight.

State Treasurer Bob Hardeman is in the city tonight, the guest of Capt. J. W. Murphy, and will examine the state bank tomorrow.

Reuben Kolb, agricultural commissioner of Alabama, is registered at the Rankin tonight. He will address the farmers of Russell and Lee tomorrow.

Newton County Ex-Confederates.

COVINGTON, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—The annual meeting of the Newton County Confederate Veterans' Association occurred here today. In addition to the annual reports of officers and the regular business of the association, the meeting had before it a matter looking to the preservation and perpetuation of confederate memories by providing for the election to honorary membership of all sons of confederate veterans who are willing to join the association. A committee was appointed to take the matter under consideration and report at the next meeting. The officers elected for the next year are as follows: G. D. Heard, president; John M. Robinson, vice president; T. D. Guinn, treasurer; J. W. Anderson, secretary; W. B. Haygood, chaplain; J. C. Anderson, surgeon, and Capus Dickson, historian.

Young Norton's Trial Coming On.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Next week Effingham superior court meets. Young Bob Norton's trial will be taken up. His counsel do not give any intimation as to whether a change of venue will be asked. Great interest is felt in this case in Effingham, and many friends of the Birds will be present. The list of witnesses is understood to be a long one.

He Was Not Admitted.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—Yesterday afternoon A. S. Tucker, a negro of Waycross, appeared before Judge Atkinson, of the superior court, for admittance to the bar. The negro failed to produce the proper certificate, so the judge refused to have an examination, and Tucker was not admitted.

Too Much Wine.

BUFORD, Ga., May 5.—[Special.]—James Puckett, who was passing the planing mills of Pharr & Cain in this place, got his fingers cut off with the planing bit this evening. He and one of his friends had taken on a fresh supply of wine, and it is supposed he did not know what the bit was till his fingers were off.

On Fire with Eczema

Terrible Sufferings of Little Baby Seven Doctors and Two Hospitals Fail. Cured by Cuticura.

My baby boy, 5 months old, broke out with eczema. The itching and burning were intense; the eczema spread to his limbs, breast, face and head, until he was nearly covered; his torturing agonies were pitiable to behold; he had no peace and but little rest night or day. He was under treatment at different times at two hospitals and by seven doctors in this city without the least benefit; every prescription of the doctors was faithfully tried, but he grew worse all the time. For months I expended about $8 per week for medicines, and was entirely discouraged. I purchased CUTICURA, CUTICURA SOAP and CUTICURA RESOLVENT, and followed the directions to the letter. Relief was immediate, his sufferings were eased, and rest and sleep permitted. He steadily improved and in nine weeks was entirely cured, and has now as clear a skin and is as fair a boy as any mother could wish to see. I recommend every mother to use it for every Baby Humor. MRS. M. FERGUSON, 86 West Brookline st., Boston.

OLD FOLKS' PAINS.

Full of comfort for all Pains, Inflammation, and Weakness of the aged is the Cuticura Anti-Pain Plaster, the first and only pain-killing strengthening plaster. New, instantaneous, and infallible.

SIMPLE TALKS ON THE EYE.

"The proper study of mankind is man." If this be so, then it is not amiss to consider one of the most important parts in the make-up of a man, viz.: his eyes.

The eye is curiously and wonderfully formed, and it is the most perfect optical contrivance. It is apparently complicated, and yet it is simple. It is strong, and yet in a certain way delicate. It receives the light, allows it to pass through the aqueous humor, crystalline lens, and vitreous humor, whose function it is to properly assort and distribute the rays and throw them on the retina. Thus we have the sense of sight. The eye is called upon frequently to work two-thirds of the time, and it performs the task faithfully and uncomplainingly until tired nature can hold out no longer, then the assistance of glasses is required. Glasses are used mainly by persons for presbyopia or old sight as it is called. This occurs at the age of forty and forty-five, and is easy to correct, if glasses are used in time. In young persons the ciliary muscle contracts and makes the crystalline lens more convex, but, as one grows older, the muscle becomes less able to do this work, and the crystalline lens grows harder, and it is necessary to apply convex glasses of proper strength to correct this deficiency. A few of the other defects of vision are mentioned and illustrated below.

SHOWING A PERFECT EYE.

In the above illustration it will be seen that the emmetropic or perfectly formed eye is adjusted for parallel rays of right. In such an eye the rays enter, pass through the crystalline lens, and the other refractive media and focus exactly on the retina at the back. The impression is then conveyed to the brain through the optic nerve, and the result is perfect vision.

It is frequently the case that, by reason of defective construction of the eye, the distance to the retina is too great and the rays focus before reaching the retina.

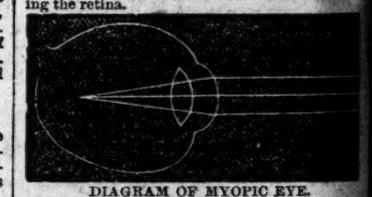

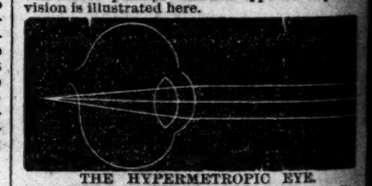

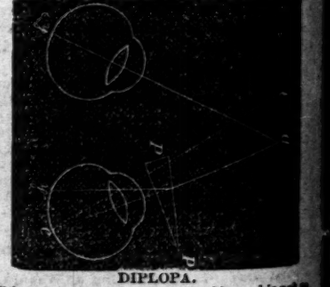

DIAGRAM OF MYOPIC EYE.

This condition causes myopia, or near-sightedness, as it is generally called. The above cut shows this defect plainly. Another type of imperfect vision is illustrated here.

THE HYPERMETROPIC EYE.

This is the reverse of myopia, in that the distance from the lens to the retina is too short. The rays do not focus on the retina, and thus the hypermetrope has blurred and indistinct vision.

DIPLOPIA.

This causes a person to see double, and is not so common as the other defects noted above. It is generally corrected by the use of lenses ground in the form of prisms. For hypermetropia convex lenses are worn, and cases of near-sightedness are relieved by concave lenses. There are many other defects that cannot be spoken of now, on account of lack of space, but we will say a few words about astigmatism, from which many persons suffer. It is caused by a want of symmetry in the cornea, and there are several varieties of the simple and compound astigmatism. It is treated by oculists and cylindrical lenses prescribed and they are furnished by the optician. Numbers of people, including children, have frequent headaches, and do not understand the cause. It is often the case, especially among students at colleges and universities, the percentage is constantly increasing of those who wear glasses. Their use enables the student who has weak eyes to study without discomfort or fatigue, and thus keep up with the class.

Among those who supply glasses of all kinds there is none so well known to the public as the optician A. K. Hawkes. Starting many years ago in a modest way, his reputation grew for making none but the best glasses. His business increased. He established one of his houses in Atlanta. This being a peculiarly favorable location for him, his trade rapidly increased in volume. He then decided to concentrate his energies in building up the greatest business of this kind that has ever been carried on. His branch house at Austin, Tex., was closed and consolidated with this. He erected machinery for grinding all kinds of lenses. In accordance with his custom of doing nothing by halves he equipped the factory with the most modern improvements in this line. The plant is operated by an electric motor of great power. While there are several other factories in the south for grinding the surface of lenses, they are all simple machines, and cannot compare in extent, perfection nor completeness with that of Mr. Hawkes. This is natural, as it requires the immense trade that he has been for years building up to enable him to place and operate this expensive machinery. Before the wheels of the factory began to revolve the offices were removed to 12 Whitehall street, and a fitting department was fixed up in the front room, which is said to be one of the most elegant in the United States.

Trained opticians are in attendance here to see that proper glasses are given, and that the frames are correctly adjusted. In a word it is intended that this shall be everywhere known as a house, that can supply out of stock or make to order at the factory, anything in the optical line from a watch glass to a telescope.

A. K. HAWKES,
Manufacturing Optician, 12 Whitehall street.

THE GREAT REVIVAL.

AN INTERESTING SERVICE YESTERDAY EVENING.

Rev. R. R. Williams Addresses a Large Congregation, and the Music Is Superb.

The great revival grows in interest, and there was an increase in the congregation last evening.

Being inter-denominational, people from all the churches of the city attend these meetings. There is something very attractive about a religious service in the open air, with the heavens and the twinkling stars above ..., and the green sward beneath.

Rev. Mr. Williams is a most effective speaker. He had for his subject "The Great Supper," a theme which appeals to the hearts of Christian people more then any other which could be discussed.

The speaker began with an explanation of the symbolic nature of the "Last Supper," and dilated on the idea that "whosoever will may come."

His sermon was interspersed with many anecdotes and incidents in the way of illustration; and at the close he made an appeal for Christianizing influences that was irresistible. After a song from the orchestra, Rev. J. B. Culpepper arose and made a short and telling appeal to those who were willing to undertake to lead a better life.

Then came the singing.

It was superb.

An organ solo, "Mother's Boy," was rendered in the most beautiful manner, and brought tears to the eyes of many a mother in the audience.

There were a number of other sweet songs, and there were a great many penitents who came forward and expressed the hope that they might be able to lead better lives.

HIT WITH A PISTOL.

Mr. Jim Patterson Has Trouble With a Car Driver.

There was a difficulty in the office of the superintendent of the Metropolitan street car line last night, and Yancey Cowen, an ex-driver was knocked in the head with a pistol. Cowen's trouble was with Assistant Superintendent Jim Patterson.

Cowen was taken to the station house with blood flowing from an ugly wound on his head, and when asked the trouble stated that Mr. Patterson had shot him through the head. He stated that he had been sick with the measles for over a week, and last week was turned off. He had done nothing, and thought the officials had done wrong in making him loose work.

"I am a poor man," he added, and have a wife and four children to support. Last night Mr. Patterson called me into his office and locked the door. He asked me what I had been saying about him, and I told him that I had only said that he had done wrong. He then called me a liar, and ... I told him I couldn't ... that he hit at me. He then opened a drawer, took out a pistol and shot me through the head. Then he telephoned for an officer and had me arrested."

Cowen talked a great deal, and in a rambling manner. He got his story rather mixed, and finally said that Patterson only struck him with the pistol.

Mr. Patterson says that Cowen came into his office drunk and cursed him. He told him to stop, but Cowen would not, and threatened violence. He then got a pistol out of a drawer, and, to protect himself, struck the man. He then called the police.

Cowen thought he was worse hurt than he really was. Dr. Van Goidtsnoven was sent for, who carefully dressed the wound, and pronounced the man not seriously injured.

GEORGIA MARBLE COMPANY.

Annual Meeting of the Stockholders to Be Held Here Today.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Georgia Marble Company will be held in Atlanta today. Amongst those here now to attend the meeting are President H. C. Clement, Vice President George W. Hoffman, Secretary and Treasurer O. F. Bane and Directors D. K. Hill and Austin Clement, of Chicago; Director S. C. Tate and General Manager George H. Keeler, of Tate, Ga.; Director Frank H. Siddall, of Philadelphia, and Mr. E. Herbert Ingalls, of Boston.

The principal business today will be the election of officers and directors. All the present officers and the present board of directors will be elected.

"Everything," said President Clement last night, "is in a highly prosperous condition with our company. We have made extensive improvements during the past year and will largely extend our business in the immediate future. More of the products of our quarries will be used in Atlanta the present year than the whole state of Georgia has consumed during the previous six years since the organization of our company. The rapidly increasing demand for Georgia marble from the Atlantic to the Pacific, shows that it is becoming understood and appeciated."

FUNERAL OF MRS. BARRY.

Will Take Place from the First Methodist Church This Morning.

The funeral of Mrs. R. E. Barry will take place from the First Methodist church, at 10:30 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Barry's death occurred Monday night, at her home in Decatur, after a lingering illness of three weeks. From first to last she bore her sufferings with Christian resignation, and her sweet and gentle spirit was never more radiant than during her last days, when she felt that life was slowly but surely ebbing away.

The patient sufferer was surrounded by sorrowing friends and the members of her family, including her mother and sisters, and under their loving eyes she fell asleep in Jesus.

Mrs. Barry was the wife of Mr. R. E. Barry, of the railway mail service, and during her residence in Atlanta her bright and winning gifts of mind and person, and her rare Christian traits of character endeared her to a host of friends. Her grief-stricken husband, her two little children and other near relatives have the sympathy of all in their bereavement. Mrs. Barry was in the very flower of youthful womanhood, and her death is a sad shock to those who fondly hoped that she had many years of happiness and usefulness before her.

TAKEN TO MISSOURI.

Dunn, the Man Who Worked the Cotton Scheme, Taken Away.

J. L. Dunn is on his way to Sedalia, Mo., in charge of J. J. Kinney, special agent of the Missouri, Kansas and Texas railway.

Officer Kinney left yesterday morning, the requisition papers having all been properly executed.

Funeral of Myra Miller.

The funeral of Myra Miller occurred yesterday afternoon from the First (colored) Congregational church, corner Calhoun and Houston streets.

Perhaps no colored woman in Atlanta has ever received more honors in these last rites. The church was crowded with those who had known her in life, and highly respected her. Among them some of the most prominent ladies in the city were present.

There was a large following to the grave. The interment took place in Oakland.

The New Line in Operation.—The first trip over the new electric line to West End—the Atlanta, West End and Fort McPherson—was made yesterday. The cars were crowded, and everything worked to perfection. The road has been built in a remarkably short time, but there isn't a better built line in the state. A regular schedule will be put on in a day or two.

BOYS READ THIS!

A Splendid Chance For Every Boy

—TO GET—

A Magnificent Bicycle Free!

THE CONSTITUTION has made an arrangement with the well-known firm of R. L. Coleman & Co., 40 Park Place, New York city, agents of the Western Wheel Works, which will enable us to offer to every boy in Georgia THE CHANCE OF A LIFETIME to provide himself with a first-class Bicycle free of cost

BOYS' JUNIOR "SAFETY" BICYCLE.

This Bicycle is the strongest braced wheel made. The wheels are 24 inches in diameter, with moulded rubber tries three-fourths of an inch thick on the back wheel, and five-eights of an inch thick on the front wheel. The wheels run on hardened steel cones, having large bearing surfaces and adjustable for wear. The handle bar is made adjustable in height, and of sufficient length to make the Bicycle easily adjustable in size for boys from 7 to 16 years of age. The saddle is the easiest riding saddle made, and can be adjusted to suit the height of any boy rider. A neat and convenient tool bag, containing all implements necessary to keep the machine in perfect running order, is furnished with each Bicycle.

The finish is excellent, the frame being several times enameled. The spokes are strong, and the machine is specially adapted for continued and active service.

HOW TO GET ONE

This machine sells on the market at $35. THE CONSTITUTION will give one to any boy who secures us 10 new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday CONSTITION for one year, at $8 apiece.

You need not collect the money, our regular collectors will do that. All we want is for you to get up a club of ten new subscribers to the Daily and Sunday CONSTITUTION for one year, secure their written orders and bring them to THE CONSTITUTION business office for approval and enrollment.

THE DAILY AND SUNDAY CONSTITUTION

Will be delivered every morning for a year to the door steps of Subscribers thus gotten, which, at the low rate of subscription will make it the cheapest investment that any person, who does not now subscribe, can make.

Everybody wants it—everybody will have it. It is the simplest thing in the world to get subscribers to the Daily and Sunday CONSTITUTION by approaching anybody who does not now subscribe.

This is a splendid chance for any boy to get a Bicycle for nothing, and remember that it is THE BEST BICYCLE of the kind on the market. It will stand any wear, and is a beautiful and graceful machine that will become a continuous source of joy and pleasure to every boy who owns one!

The Retail Price of This Machine is $35---We Give It Away!

Now, BOYS, SHOW YOUR ENTERPRISE. Go out in the evening after school, make a brief canvass, and get up your club of ten new Subscribers—remember that they must be new Subscribers, persons who do not now take THE CONSTITUTION. Or, you may divide as follows:

If you cannot get ten new Subscribers for a year to the Daily and Sunday at $8 apiece, we will give you a Wheel on the following terms:

For 20 Subscribers for 6 months, each at $4, you get the Wheel.

For 40 Subscribers for 3 months, each at $2, you get the Wheel.

Or get as many as you can for a year at $8 each, and complete your club by getting Subscribers for fractional parts of a year at the rate of $8 for the Daily and Sunday for one year, $4 for six months, $2 for three months; all to aggregate $80.

Send us a club of Subscribers, the aggregate amount of which at the above rates will be $80, and

WE WILL GIVE YOU A $35 BICYCLE.

A sample Bicycle can be seen by applying at THE CONSTITUTION business office. Come and look at it, or take our word for it, and by a little enterprise you can own one by very little effort.

You will be surprised to see how easy it is to get Subscribers! Try it, and the result will be that

The Constitution's Bicycle Brigade

Will Astonish the People In a Short While.

Is There to Be a Rupture?

It is given out from Washington that there are signs of a conflict between Mr. Harrison and his secretary of state, and the newspaper correspondents are trying to make something out of it in order to pad out their information during the dull season. We believe the friends of Mr. Blaine are more nervous and excited than the secretary himself, and out of this hysterical feeling on their part grow the rumors that find their way into the newspapers.

Nevertheless, the situation is undoubtedly an interesting one, and if Mr. Blaine were as sensitive as he used to be, there would undoubtedly be some danger of a rupture. One of the elements of interest is Mr. Harrison's son Russell, who seems to take a fiendish delight in speaking "authoritatively" for Mr. Blaine in Frank Leslie's Illustrated newspaper, in which the Harrison family has an editorial interest. It is young Russell's mission just at this time to fret and worry the friends of Mr. Blaine by showing conclusively that the secretary of state is so "loyal" to the head of the administration that he has no other thought beyond that of promoting the desire of Mr. Harrison to serve a second term.

While speaking authoritatively for Mr. Blaine, young Harrison does not hesitate to speak authoritatively for the head of the administration. He has announced, for instance, that to the president and not to Mr. Blaine is due the credit of the reciprocity treaties. Mr. Harrison himself, in his Galveston speech, confirmed every claim that Son Russell had made, but, somehow or other, the presidential utterance doesn't seem to worry the friends of Mr. Blaine so much as the casual editorial remarks of Son Russell. They say that the claims set up by Son Russell are contrary to the records and the history of the reciprocity business.

To add to the fretfulness of Mr. Blaine's friends and to complicate the situation, Mr. McKinley, who has never forgiven the secretary of state for his active opposition to the new tariff law, comes forward and declares that to President Harrison is due the credit for the invention of the machinery by which the present system of machinery was wrought out. McKinley says he saw the matter in Mr. Harrison's handwriting. On this point a much disturbed friend of Mr. Blaine is quoted as saying that the reciprocity resolution, as it was adopted, was in Senator Aldrich's handwriting and not Mr. Harrison's.

And now, as if to show that everything is ready for a riot of some kind, another friend of Mr. Blaine's declares that the health of the secretary of state was never better. This may mean much or it may mean little, but, as the little boy said to the stranger who went into the woods, "Watch out for snakes!"

England and Silver.

Commenting on some remarks in THE CONSTITUTION in regard to the necessity for remonetizing silver by means of free coinage, Editor Murat Halstead says: "The United States has coined hundreds of millions of legal tender silver dollars. What is that but monetizing silver?" By the injection of this powerful interrogation Mr. Halstead exposes himself to ridicule. He should not, in the haste and hurry of his effort to prove his fealty to the mighty golden calf of Wall street, permit himself to forget that the silver question should be discussed on the basis of common sense. We believe that Mr. Halstead's ignorance, implied in the question he asks, is pure affectation. He certainly understands that so long as our mints are closed to the coinage of silver on equal terms with gold, the white metal is demonetized, and its value a matter of speculation.

Unwillingly, Mr. Halstead pays a very high tribute to the fiat and stamp of the government when he admits that the millions of silver dollars coined under the Bland law are really monetized. It has been the habit of men holding the Wall street view to declare that the coinage of legal tender dollars under the Bland law was a fraud on the public. They made, and some of them are still making, serious efforts to poison the mind of the people against the silver dollar. These efforts, however, are less frequent than they were a few years ago. Time and experience have vindicated the wisdom of those who favored the Bland law, and we see less in the Wall street organs about the "debased," the "depreciated," and the "eighty cent" dollar. In other words, the free coinage principle behind the Bland law has been completely vindicated.

It is worthy of remark—or, rather, the remark is worthy of repetition—that precisely the arguments that were employed against the compulsory coinage law are now employed against free coinage. The very predictions that were made when that law was the subject of discussion are now made in regard to free coinage. Gold was to be run out of the country, and a depreciated currency was to take its place.

Mr. Halstead, being an original man, however, does not depend altogether on the old arguments. He is able to invent some of his own, and they are very suggestive. We would call special attention to one which, it seems to us, is not without a streak or two of that vivid western humor which is apt to crop out occasionally among the strata of the field marshal's editorials. "England," he says, "has used gold as the monetary standard, and she has not ruined herself at it as yet." Ruined herself! Well, we should say not. By buying American silver, depreciated for that very purpose by a conspiracy among certain republican statesmen, and selling it to India at par, England has been able to coin millions and millions out of the situation. These millions have come out of the pockets of the cotton and grain producers of the United States.

Mr. Halstead ought to describe this process of spoliation to his readers. It is a theme worthy of his gifted pen. The price of American cotton and grain is determined by what the surplus will fetch in foreign markets. The price in these foreign markets is itself determined by the price of silver bullion. If the English trader is able to buy a dollar's worth of Indian wheat for seventy-five cents' worth of silver, or for eighty cents' worth of silver, the transaction fetches the price of American wheat down to the silver valuation. So with cotton, and so it would be with every other American product compelled to compete with India.

We can but believe that Mr. Halstead was in a hilarious mood when he cheerfully remarked that England is not ruining herself by maintaining the gold standard. He ought to have broadened his joke by showing how England's gold standard is ruining the farmers of the United States. Yet his suggestion, if it is a serious one, shows a deplorable lack of information and sympathy, for we are led to infer that England's prosperity is a matter which the people of this country should further and add to by keeping silver in its demonetized and depreciated condition. We have long observed that the prosperity of British traders is of far more importance to the republican goldbugs than the prosperity of our own people. These British traders need depreciated silver in their business of robbing the American farmers, and Mr. Halstead and his coparceners are anxious that the United States should co-operate with them.

Facts About Taxes.

The Washington Post presents some interesting tax figures.

For the next two years our government will spend annually more than $500,000,000.

To pay one year's expenses of the government it will take nearly the combined wheat and oat crop.

Our annual output of gold, silver, copper, iron, coal, petroleum and lead will not foot our tax bill for twelve months.

Nor can we do it with a year's product of cotton, wool, rye, barley, wine, potatoes and tobacco.

The combined capitalization of our national banks is $599,000,000. One year's taxes will nearly swallow it up.

Now, all this is the federal tax. We have also to pay city, county and state taxes.

We pretend to be a nation of plain people, with no aristocracy, no princes, no standing army and no expensive frills, and yet our taxes are more enormous than those of Austria, Germany or Great Britain.

When we calmly consider these facts and figures it must be admitted that the outlook is not very encouraging. But such evils always lead to a reaction. The people will be forced by stern necessity to demand reform or revolution, and in a country like ours such a state of public sentiment is bound to crystallize into reform.

A Century Behind the Times.

The young emperor of Germany talks too much, and, if reports be true, he drinks too much.

From time to time his banquet speeches shock and disgust sober-minded people. The old saying that when the wine is in the wit is out is as true of an emperor as it is of a common mortal.

"I am the war lord," said William on one occasion, and now at the Duesseldorf banquet he declares that he will never deviate a hair's breadth from his home policy, and winds up with the boast, "I alone am master in this country, and nobody else."

Germany is an enlightened country. Her people are a nation of thinkers. The love of liberty is strong in their breasts, and democratic ideas are rapidly spreading. It is no time for a ruler to prate about the divine right of kings, and the less he says about playing the master the better. From the highest to the lowest classes of German society there is a growing conviction that the Lord did not create the masses already saddled and bridled for a few men to ride. A constitutional monarchy so liberally administered as to be practically a republic may be submitted to for a long time to come, but eighteenth-century ideas and methods will not do in this age.

The German emperor should drink less and think more. Then he should curb his reckless tongue. As a rule, the great leaders and commanders of men are not given to much talk. They are not all the time making boasting speeches at banquets. They hear the crowd, but the crowd rarely hears them. With such men silence is indeed golden.

Our Sunday Laws.

Undoubtedly, Atlanta has the best Sunday laws and the best Sunday order of any city in the United States.

This is the testimony of experienced observers and travelers from all parts of the union.

And our Sunday regulations are reasonable. They do not oppress anybody, and they leave good citizens free to enjoy the day in a manner that will not injure or annoy anybody. On Sunday the tired toiler can get a breath of country air by taking any of our street car lines. He can purchase a newspaper or a refreshing glass of soda water or a cigar. The law does not interfere with the sober, quiet and reasonable comfort of anybody.

So far, so good. But the disposition to multiply laws should be guarded against. Just when we have succeeded in reaching an almost ideal condition there is always danger of an attempt to overdo the thing. The laws are tinkered, and new experiments are tried. Strange regulations are the citizens, and then comes a popular protest or revolt.

Here is Atlanta's danger. Now that we have a model state of decorum and order on Sunday, why run the risk of going backward by trying an injudicious and untimely forward movement?

At present our Sunday regulations are generally respected, but if we try to draw the reins tighter there will be a kick. If the people once get the idea into their heads that there is something bigoted or Puritanical about our Sunday laws, the result will be unfortunate for religion, morals and public order.

It is a wise policy to let well alone.

THE WHISKY question in Boston is, Shall it be drunk standing or sitting? The result is that many people get drunk horizontally.

THE GLOBE-DEMOCRAT says the McKinley law has increased imports. The G.-D. refers, of course, to the purchases made abroad by merchants who desired to get ahead of the law.

MCKINLEY SAYS we shall have a tariff as long as we have a government. This is true, but the people have already decided that it shall not be the McKinley tariff.

THE REPUBLICANS of New York are afraid that Governor Hill will run for governor again.

BISMARCK is still in the ring, but he seems to have no show against the big "I" of the German emperor.

THE ITALIANS who are coming to this country are not very desirable immigrants. Their household effects consist of a stiletto and a brass finger-ring.

MR. HARRISON seems to have no opposition in the republican party. Small as he is, he has smashed the Blaine boom.

THE REPUBLICAN slummers and the democratic bummers of Ohio are in the habit of dividing the boodle.

MR. HARRISON remarks that he has tired to make a business demonstration. This is true. He has not allowed Blaine any half holidays to nurse his boom. Consequently the boom has collapsed for lack of moisture.

THE TROUBLE with the Behring sea dispute is the fact that Mr. Blaine's friend, "Steve" Elkins is engaged in the seal business.

IT IS now thought that Blair would be willing to make a few speeches in Japan.

THERE SEEMS to be trouble in the treasury department. Foster says there is no money in the treasury, and Leech says there is plenty. These able republicans should pool their issues. How will Mr. Harrison be able to project his boom while there is a fuss in the family?

IT IS said that "the republican party can look into its past without blushing." Does a burglar blush when he recounts his feats?

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THE DEATH of Tom Beasley in a Mississippi convict camp brought out a sad story. Beasley could not pay a fine in the mayor's court at Water Valley, and was sent to the county convict farm. He complained of being sick, and refused to work. For this he was whipped. About two hours later he died. No physician or coroner's jury examined the body. The officials defend themselves by saying that they thought Beasley was playing 'possum.

THE NEW YORK RECORDER says: "Half the fads in which women indulge today are due to newspaper writers. When some poor toiling, moiling little newspaper woman is grinding out an article for the woman's column of a big Sunday paper and gets stuck for material on her last page of copy, does she tear her hair and say: 'No butter shall I have this week to spread my Vienna rolls, because forsooth I have not ideas enough to fill up my column?' No! She sits down calmly and writes paragraphs that begin with: 'It is the correct thing to'——. The more unique and startling the 'correct thing' is the better. Miss Newfad and Mme. Latewhim read it next day and immediately adopt it as their pet fancy, and so the fad that my tired little writer up in her tiny room originated to earn butter with is accepted on the avenue and becomes the 'correct thing' after all. As they say in confidential newspaper coteries: 'A good fake is as good as a genuine story any day.'"

HISTORY WAS never so little read as at the present time, and yet there never was an era in which its lessons were more needed.

AN OLD MERCHANT in Honduras writes to a friend in Washington that it would be an easy matter for American houses to make large sales in Central and South America if they would send out drummers who speak and write Spanish, and understand the people of those countries. A New York drummer who has spent twelve months in the countries south of us took orders for $1,000,000 worth of goods. When we send out the right class of men with good lines of samples we may expect a big trade with the Spanish-American republics.

THE SUICIDE of Lord James Douglas need not astonish anybody. The average lord is a very idle and useless person, and he finds life very monotonous. The majority of noblemen kill themselves by general dissipation, and when one cuts his throat he simply hurries the result of his suicidal habits.

THE MAGAZINES have killed books, and now the daily newspapers are killing the magazines. In this rushing, alert age, men cannot waste time on superfluous words. They must have their facts and comments well condensed, and the newspapers offer them just what they want.

OUR PORT authorities should be on their guard. Nearly every steamer from Spain brings smallpox.

REV. THOMAS DIXON'S admirers in New York will build for him a ten-story building, containing stores, and auditorium, and six stories of offices.

CHATS WITH THE PRESS.

The editor of The Covington Star, who is a late riser, devotes an entire line to the statement that "cool mornings are unwholesome."

The Sycamore News is in the lead so far with snake stories. It records that a boy in Worth county while hunting rabbits this week came very near losing his life. A rabbit ran into a hollow tree, when he proceeded, like all other boys, to bag his game, but instead of fetching out the rabbit he drew out a moccasin, which had actually swallowed the boy's hand. After fighting with the snake, and not being able to tear it loose, he walked over a mile. On reaching home Drs. Hall, Hill and Ridley were called in and had to cut half of the boy's hand off.

Quite a large number of the heirs or desendants of John Townsend, who came over to America from England about the year 1754, met in Covington, on last Tuesday, for the purpose of taking some steps looking to the recovery of a large sum, which is said to be in the Bank of England, belonging to the Townsend heirs. The heirs perfected an organization, by selecting Judge E. F. Edwards, as chairman, and Colonel A. M. Helms, of Conyers, as secretary. After discussing the relationship of the various branches of the Townsend family, much valuable information was gained. Judge Edwards was chosen as general counsel for the claimants on this side of the water. They also determined to form a "Genealogical Tree," and, to this end, one member of each branch of the family was appointed to act as chairman of that immediate branch, and to prepare the limb for the building up of the genealogical tree. Arrangements are now being made with Judge Edwards to send him to England to look after the estate in that country, which is said to amount to the fabulous sum of $80,000,000.

Captain Edward Young has resigned command of the Greene Rifles. Captain Young was one of the chief organizers of the company, and has been a commissioned officer since its organization. He has found that it interferes seriously with his newspaper work, and as he wishes to bend all his energies to the work he has engaged in, he has given up military life. He leaves the Rifles in splendid trim, and as well equipped as any command in the state.

Perhaps the youngest old man in the state is Mr. Whitfield Landrum, who lives is Bowling Green district, about six miles from Lexington. Though in his ninety-fifth year, he retains all his faculties and is sufficiently spry to work his garden, look after the feeding of several head of cattle and stock and do many odd jobs around his premises. His memory is remarkable and it is truly interesting to hear him tell the customs of people and things that happened in the long, long ago.

Captain Hill Bryan Coffee, a son of the late General John Coffee, died a few days ago near Cherry Lake, in Florida.

Dr. Miller H. White, during his youth a resident of the eastern part of Upson county, and a few years ago pastor of the Thomaston Methodist church, died at Grantville recently. He was on the superannuated list of the North Georgia conference, and had done faithful work for the cause of Christ all his life.

ETCHED AND SKETCHED.

One of the incidents of the Chickamauga sale will be interesting to the ladies of Atlanta, especially to those who take an interest in real estate. Mrs. Walter Gordon, who attended the sale and wrote the spirited account of it, which appeared in THE CONSTITUTION, was not only an interested spectator but a bona fide bidder for lots. Having a good eye for real estate, she picked out one of the best lots, and bid it off for $700. It so happened that General Wilder had selected this lot for himself, and, having his attention distracted at the time when it was put up, was a little chagrined to find that it had been sold. The disappointment, however, was much less when he found that it had fallen in such good hands. In a bantering way he offered Mrs. Gordon $800 for the lot a few minutes after she bid it off. It was a trade, and General Wilder has the lot.

By the way, there are a good many other Atlanta ladies who have an eye for real estate. In almost any office you will see them looking at plats, and if you watch closely you will see that they beat the men about as badly as an East Tennesseean beats a Georgian in a horse trade.

There is a marked difference in the way men and women trade. A man will sit down and figure out how many lots a plat will make, how much each lot will bring, and how much the profit will be on the whole transaction. A woman will look at a piece of property, size it up at a glance, then look at the seller and size him up. Then she will tap her pretty finger on the desk and say, I will give you so much. The man will scratch his head, stammer a little and finally end the matter by selling her the property for about a fourth less than he could talk a man into giving for it.

Do you know that the oldest conductor, in point of service, in the United States, runs on the Georgia railroad between Atlanta and Augusta? He is Mr. Mike Walsh, who has presided over the day express for forty-one years, and in all that time he has never had an accident of any consequence. Indeed, the number of occasions he has missed his schedule time have been but few. Mr. Walsh is yet apparently a young man, and will, perhaps, be good for a score of years' more service to the Georgia railroad.

"You should see the Grant collection in the national museum at Washington," said an Atlanta lady yesterday who has recently returned from a northern visit. "I mean the presents received by General Grant which he afterwards presented to the museum. There are hundreds of gold articles exquisitely engraved and brought together from all parts of the world. They are worth very many thousands of dollars. There is a complete collection of Japanese coin, one of only two in existence. There are perhaps a hundred in the collection, but seven of them alone are said to have cost $5,000. Some of the gold coins are as large as a dinner plate. Then there are a half dozen large elephant tusks presented to him by the king of Siam, and presents from Chinese princes. Then there are all the swords presented to him, many of them with gold handles set in diamonds and rubies. Many of the cities he visited on his tour gave him gold boxes containing papers extending him the freedom of the cities, and they are there. Some of them are almost as large as a cigar box. Then there is a solid gold card in an envelope of solid silver, which was sent him in the form of an invitation to a ball in San Francisco, and, indeed, there are hundreds of gold and silver articles of enormous value. There must be more than $100,000 worth of raw material in the collection."

Hon. W. T. Smith, of Gwinnett, was here yesterday.

"No news now," he said, "but I'm going to stop work next week and enjoy myself with some Atlanta folks fishing. Judge W. L. Calhoun, Captain Hugh Colquitt and Hon. Howell Erwin are coming up. We are going to have a big time on the river. We are to furnish the fish, and I have the best negro cook in Georgia to cook them."

"It's all bosh, in my opinion, to say that Georgia cannot make an appropriation for an exhibit at Chicago," said Mr. W. L. Glessner, of Americus, last evening. "We can't constitutionally make it for that specific purpose in language to that effect, but it will be a very easy matter for the legislature to appropriate, say $80,000, for the agricultural department, with the understanding that the department is to spend it upon an exhibit. Then there can be a popular subscription, or the various interests of the state can furnish suitable exhibits. I shall favor such a plan in the convention."

Solicitor General Beverly D. Evans, of Sandersville, came up last evening. Mr. Evans is the youngest solicitor general in the state, but there are few brighter ones.

"The great question with our people now," said he, "is how to get out of the tenth congressional district when the state is redistricted. We are tired of being the fag end of a district with no power nor commercial ties to bind us to the other counties. We want Washington in a new district, to be formed of counties around us. In other words, Washington wants to be in a district where she will be something. As it is the counties of our judicial district are not in our congressional district. We will send a delegation up here that will make itself heard when the legislature meets."

PEOPLE HERE AND THERE.

DAVIS.—Miss Winnie Davis, "Daughter of the Confederacy," is to unveil the Jefferson Davis monument, erected by the Ladies' Confederate Monument Association, of Mississippi, June 3d. United Sates Senator Walthall, who was a major general in the confederate service, is to deliver the address.

JACKSON.—Judge Jackson, of the United States circuit court, tells of a Virginian who came before him and confessed that he "had heard of the United States" in an indirect way, but did not think they had any control over his affairs. He "lived in Braxton county, and the county courts made the laws there."

GEORGE.—Senator George has the true look of a Mississippi roustabout in his Fourth of July clothes. There is nothing of the dude about the big, hearty and careless man, whose garments fit him as if he had been measured with a two-foot rule and the tailor had shaped them out with a crosscut saw. He is just the sort of farmer-like old fellow whom you would expect to meet in a crossroad grocery dickering about the price of molasses or the weight of a prize hog. But his political enemies don't hold him as cheaply as they do more stylish men, and they have a wholesome dread of his incisive tongue and hard-shell common sense.

HIATT.—Hiram Hiatt, of Crawfordsville, Ind., has contributed to the state house grounds at Indianapolis a weeping willow, the growth of a slip cut from the Martha Washington willow at Arlington, which is the product of a slip cut from a tree grown by the famous Alexander Pope, of England, who cut the original slip from a willow on the banks of the Euphrates, near the ancient city of Babylon.

BRECKINRIDGE.—Miss Mary Breckinridge, daughter of Congressman Breckinridge, of Kentucky, is not satisfied with being a social belle at the capital, and has begun the study of law in her father's office. Miss Breckinridge is pretty and popular, and it goes without saying that she is a sensible girl and will make a good lawyer.

SPENCER.—George E. Spencer, the long time ago exploded senator from Alabama, has once more dropped upon his feet and runs a silver mine and cattle ranch, and will soon be in form to buy any impecunious state legislature which wants to send a solid man to Washington.

SAM SMALL RESIGNS.

HE WILL NO LONGER BE IN THAT "HOLE IN THE GROUND."

Indications that There May Be Trouble in the Settlement—What an Ogden Paper Has to Say About the Case.

Sam Small has resigned his presidency of a "hole in the ground."

But it is possible his resignation will not be accepted.

An Ogden, Utah, paper, tells the story briefly:

The breach between the Rev. Mr. Small and his associates in the Ogden university has not healed—in fact, has widened to such a degree that Mr. Small has felt it incumbent upon him to make his report to the trustees, accompanying it with his formal resignation.

But there seems to be some hitch about accepting his report.

The Ogden, Utah, Standard of a recent date gives this statement of the situation:

A meeting of the university board was held yesterday.

Rev. Samuel Small has filed his report accompanied by his resignation as president. He was wired that the board would give him until May 8th to straighten his affairs, the report having proven far from satisfactory. He returned answer that the board was doing him an injustice and that he had done all in his power to make things right.

A short while ago a telegram appeared in The Standard to the effect that his accounts had been looked over by some ministers in the east, that they were all right and showed a balance of about $1,100 due the university.

It is understood, however, that his report to the board virtually showed nothing coming to the university. The board refused to accept his resignation until he makes everything all right.

THE GEORGIA COMPANY

Has Now Completed Its Preliminary Organization.

The Georgia Company, which obtained its charter of incorporation on the 24th of April last, has now completed its preliminary organization.

For the present its affairs will be conducted by an executive committee of Atlanta citizens, who have qualified themselves by taking shares in the company.

The balance of the share capital is contracted, to be taken up in England and Scotland.

The executive committee have arranged to issue $400,000 of stock and $600,000 of bonds, all of which will go toward the purchase and development of land in Georgia. The first purchase of the company will be a large tract of yellow pine land, which will be cleared as quickly as possible.

The company propose to survey the land, when cleared, into farms of from 100 to 200 acres, to fence them in, put up substantial buildings and improvements on each, and then offer them for sale, giving from ten to fifteen years to the purchaser in which to pay for them.

Mr. J. H. Lofton, who has had lengthened and successful experience in the yellow pine trade, will control the affairs of the company here during the absence of Mr. Robert W. Wilson.

Mr. Wilson, accompanied by General W. W. Kirkland, left for New York yesterday. He proposes to return to Atlanta in ten days' time, by way of Savannah.

After spending a few days in Atlanta, Mr. Wilson will proceed to London direct, and finish up the business of the company.

Thereafter he intends to spend the summer and autumn in Scotland, and to return to Atlanta about October next, accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and their children.

POLITICS IN NEW YORK.

The Outlook as it Appears to a Well-Known Kansas Editor.

ALBANY, N. Y., May 4.—The adjournment of the legislature a few days ago—in which body, it is conceded, the democrats succeeded in turning the tables upon their political opponents—leaves the democracy of this state in an enviable and commanding position.

Emerging from a heated contest with the republican senate, which culminated in a deadlock of over a fortnight, the democratic assembly, through its appointed committee, has issued an address to the public which tersely and vigorously sets forth the legislative work of the session, together with the issues joined between the two bodies.

Temperate in tone, modestly yet firmly setting forth the legislative work of the assembly, and clearly indicating the obstructions placed in the way of the assembly by the factious republican majority in the senate. The manifesto prepared by the democratic leaders with the approval of Governor Hill, is admitted by republicans themselves to be a bombshell that will powerfully mould public sentiment and swell the democratic vote at the coming November election in the Empire State.

The democracy of New York may well be proud and happy. Under the wise and prudent leadership of Governor Hill, the result of every state election since 1884, has been to increase the democratic strength, which has become, of late years a phalanx as gallant, as confident and as invincible under its intrepid leader as even that presented by the democracy of the "Empire State" of the south.

Concerning the all important question that is now on the lips of men, there is only one voice among the stalwart democracy of this great democratic state, and that is for David B. Hill. If anything in the future can be said to be certain, it is the fixed purpose of the New York democracy to present the name of Governor Hill to the coming national democratic convention as their unanimous choice for president in 1892.

The Presidency for 1892,

No one here—friend or foe—doubts this. It can be said, too, that in carrying out this purpose no "unit rule," as in 1884, in the case of Mr. Cleveland, will be necessary. So intrenched is Governor Hill in the esteem and affections of the New York democracy, so supreme and unquestioned is his leadership, no other name is likely to be before the convention.

The example of New York, shrewd politicians predict, is likely to be followed by New Jersey and Connecticut, the delegations of the three democratic states uniting in presenting with enthusiasm the name of the great leader of the New York democracy to the democratic national convention.

The Southern Visit.

Concerning the projected visit to Atlanta next October, Governor Hill spoke freely to your correspondent. It is plain to see that he looks forward to the event with anticipations of unalloyed pleasure. A warm personal friend and great admirer of the eloquent and gifted son of Georgia—the departed Grady—it will afford him genuine, if sad, pleasure, to stand on the spot where a monument is reared to his memory, to bear his tribute to his worth.

But other circumstances combine to cause Governor Hill to look forward to his proposed southern trip with pleasure. Several times the dashing executive of New York has visited the south, but always in the heat of a political campaign, when his spear, as a warrior, has been lifted in the rush of conflict against the enemy. West and south alike, his voice has been heard in past years, but always on the political field, to cheer and animate the democracy in the hour of battle.

But next autumn, under the mellowing suns of October, Governor Hill will visit the Queen City of the South, not as a cruel warrior to level a spear against any political foe, but as a friend and brother of the warm-hearted sons of Georgia, to accept their open hospitality and to rejoice with them over the brightening future of the republic.

That the welcome extended to the democratic governor of New York, and to the distinguished gentlemen who will accompany him, will be worthy of his fame and the great occasion, no one who knows the characteristics of the people of Georgia, or the proverbial hospitality of the citizens of its bright, aspiring capital city, will for a moment question.

WILL GEORGIA EXHI...

THAT IS THE QUESTION TO BE ... SIDERED TODAY

By the Delegates to the World's Fair Convention—A Large Attendance—What Is Said of a State Appropriation.

They are here by the hundred.

Delegates to the world's fair convention.

All the trains yesterday evening were in crowds of delegates, and when the convention is called to order at 9 o'clock this morning by the governor he will look as representatives a set of men as ever assembled in Atlanta.

The hall of the house of representatives was brushed up yesterday, and the delegates talked of little else except the convention all day.

"It is going to be as thorough a representative set of business men as could be found in the state," said Governor Northen yesterday. "I am delighted to see the people taking much interest in the matter, and I have no doubt but that some means will be provided by which Georgia shall be represented as she deserves at the world's fair. I wish you could say that the convention will be called to order promptly at 9 o'clock, as I know the delegates will desire to conclude the work in one day, and I am anxious that no time shall be lost."

It was suggested to the governor yesterday that the convention should appoint committees—one representing the industrial railroads of the state; the other on finance.

The duties of the first being to see that the railroads and industries of the state provide exhibits for the fair.

The second for the purpose of attending to raising the funds and seeing that each county and city in the state subscribes enough money to have a good exhibit of its resources, factories, etc., and have plenty of advertising matter of the state on hand.

But the first thing to be done today will be to call a list of the counties, get the names of the delegates, and then a chairman will be elected and the business of the convention proceed.

Everybody in the state agrees that Georgia should be an exhibit at the world's fair, but how to provide for it in face of the state debt is the question.

There are many who agree with Mr. Cobb, of Athens, that some of the [illegible] and Atlantic lease money can and should be used without actually violating the constitution, and that idea is a popular one.

Hon. N. J. Hammond has, however, expressed the opinion that it would be in violation of the constitution.

Ex-Mayor Tom Glenn was called on for an opinion to the governor yesterday afternoon to [illegible] declined, stating that he would not have time to give the matter proper consideration before [illegible] by this morning. He, however, said he believed the state would be able to make an appropriation by some means, if possible, under the constitution.

Mr. Walter B. Hill, of the Western & Atlantic commission, said he had not considered the question thoroughly, but he hoped that some means could be found to make provision for an exhibit of Georgia's resources at the fair. He does not think it should be left to individual subscriptions.

General Phil Cook thinks the state should make an appropriation, but does not think it can be done constitutionally.

There are many who say: "Bland is unconstitution. Let an appropriation be made, but unless some one proposes some way of getting around the constitution the chances are a popular subscription will be resorted to for the exhibit.

The Real Spurgeon.

From The New York Tribune.

Mr. Spurgeon recently revealed a little of his own individuality while reviewing a book on Methodism in Yorkshire, by evincing decided [illegible] this criticism of a sermon: "Ah sir, you preached a goodish sermon tonight; but it had been cut short at both ends, and a-fire in the middle, it wud a-been a good." Mr. Spurgeon "scarcely remembered the latter criticism than this," and says it might be applied to many of the discourses and books which one hears nowadays. Another story is of a not very fluent young man who, being in the habit of saying in his prayers, "Lord help me to pray," was answered one night by an audible ejaculation, "And the Lord help thee to preach, ower." "How heartily," remarks Mr. Spurgeon, "could we say 'Amen' to such a prayer in the case of a long-winded brother." Mr. Spurgeon likes the story of the clergyman who, at a prayer meeting commended silence and said: 'My dear friends, the Lord is not deaf, don't you think you could pray a little more quietly? You remember when the temple was being built at Jerusalem there was as much as any tool heard in it while building.' To which said one of the brothers, 'that's all very true, but you see we're not building the temple, we're blasting the rocks.'"

A Matter of Figures.

From The Detroit Free Press.

"Say!" began a teamster, as he entered a grocery on Grand River avenue, "I want you to do a little figuring for me."

"Well?"

"I worked for a man five days at $2.50 per day. How much is that?"

"That's $13.75."

"Well, he paid me $9.25. How much is the balance?"

"Why, $4.50, of course."

"Sure about that?"

"Certainly. How else can you figure it?"

"I made it $7."

"Then you are way off. How did you make it?"

"Same as you, but——"

"But what?"

"Why, I called him a liar and a thief, punched his head, and I have just paid a fine of $15 in the police court! Hang this new way of figuring, anyhow."

SCOTT THORNTON

...AYED RICHELIEU TO AN APPRECIATIVE AUDIENCE.

...e Acts Were Sawed Off—A Sand Cracker in the Second Act—A Bouquet with a String to It.

An ordinary professional playing Richelieu would never have crowded DeGive's as it was ...night to overflowing.

It was a full audience, and appreciative. ...e applause was all that could have been ...ed—more, at times, than would have been ...ed if that matter had been left to the re...pients of it.

This was the cast of characters:

Louis XIII ....Mr. C. Elton
Gaston, Duke of Orleans, brother to Louis XIII........ ....Mr. Henry Diddear
Baradas, favorite of the king, first gentleman of the chamber, premier, ecuyer, etc.... ....Mr. James Hilton
Cardinal Richelieu.....................Mr. Scott Thornton
The Chevelier de Mauprat ....Mr. George Adams
The Sieur de Beringer, in attendance on the king, one of the conspirators...........................Mr. Ed Vining
Joseph, a capuchin, Richelieu's confidant..................................Mr. W. Phelps
Huguet, an officer of Richelieu's household guard — a spy...................................Mr. George Bennett
Francois, first page of Richelieu......Mr. A. Howe
First Courtier...............................Mr. H. Roberts
Captain of the Archers..................Mr. Matthews
Clermont..Mr. Tilbury
Secretary of State..........................Mr. Yarnold
Governor of the Bastile..................Mr. Waldron
...ller...Mr. Arliffe
Courtiers, Pages, Conspirators, Officers, Soldiers, etc.
Julie DeMortemar, an orphan, ward to Richelieu...............................Miss Leila Gray
Marion de Lorme.......................Miss Alma Demars

More than a dozen policemen were stationed at various points in the audience, and nearly as many more were on the steps and about the door, prepared for an emergency.

This array was effective in preventing any positive outbreak, but short of that the police were powerless. The audience knew it.

Through the first act and part of the second, most of the actors could be heard.

"Louder!" the audience would insist now and then. "Louder!"

"Ha!" said a soldier in yellow and black stockings, "Ha! ha!"

"Haw! Haw! Haw!" was the echo. "Do that again! Where's Scotty?"

That was the beginning of it, and along in the second act it became overwhelmning.

"Take away the sword," said Richelieu "States can be saved without it."

"Quite right, Scott," from the audience.

One of the guards got mad.

Julie had a hard time.

"Louder! Louder!"

"Yes'm! Yes'm!"

By this time most of the actors had become known by names not down in the lines.

One was "Rube Burrows." Another, of Italian air, was "Who Kille de Chief." Somebody called Richelieu "Old Chinese Dude," and the name stuck to him, contracted to "Chinee" later on. Another was "Jumbo Hunter." Another was "Little Lord Fontle...roy," and so on.

In the third act the man in black mask draws his sword on Richelieu; and the sympathy of the audience was aroused.

"Stick him! Stick him!"

"Don't let him bluff you, Scotty!"

"Stick 'im! He aint looking!"

"Watch 'im, Scotty!"

Then in the fourth act an enormous sandcracker exploded just in the midst of a dramatic dialogue.

A minute later a guard rushes upon the stage, interrupting another dialogue.

"What's he got to do with it, anyway?" somebody wanted to know.

"Take him off!"

"Police! Police! Police!"

As the curtain started down an enormous bouquet fell at Richelieu's feet. The cardinal stooped to pick it up. It moved, and kept on moving, for there was a string to it. The crowd went wild.

The last act was pantomime, pure and simple.

The king ascends his throne, and a clerical-looking character hands him several papers.

"Give 'im a subpœna!"

"Ten and costs!"

"Where's black maria?"

"He won't do it again!"

Accompanying the play as a scene in the recorder's court, with the judge on his stand, the clerk near by with his papers, and witnesses and prisoners in attendance.

They were partial to Marion, and in favor of giving her anything she wanted.

"Let her have it!" they advised Richelieu. "She's all right! Give the woman a show!"

The awful circle act was omitted altogether. The most comical incident of the evening came just at the last. The bouquet with a string was thrown again.

Richelieu made a rush for it. As it started to move he brought his foot down, not quite in time to stop it. Richelieu was still pursuing that bouquet when the curtain fell.

It left him behind the curtain—the bouquet in front of it and still moving.

THE STREETS AND RAILROADS.

Two Meetings of Property Owners to Be Held Tonight.

Double tracks and electric motor power.

Just now Atlanta is deeply interested in them.

They are absolutely essential to rapid transit, and rapid transit is what Atlanta wants.

The railroad people are equally as anxious as the citizens to have the matter finally and definitely settled, and today Mr. Woodward, chairman of the special committee, will have a conference with Mr. Middlebrooks, chafrman of the committee on electrical construction, so as to arrange for a joint meeting. At this joint meeting all parties who have any interest whatever in the matter will be asked to attend.

The joint committee will be composed of Mr. Middlebrooks, Mr. Hulsey and Mr. Hendrix, who form the electric committee, and Mr. Woodward, Mr. Turner and Mr. Tye who constitute the special committee.

Before these six gentlemen the citizens and railroad men will talk.

Delegations will be before the committee from both the north and south sides of Atlanta.

The north side delegation will protest against a double track on Peachtree from the junction out. The protest will be uniform and strong, and tonight those interested will meet at the Gate City Guard armory to perfect their protest. A call for the meeting, signed by L. Mims, J. S. Raine, J. H. Porter, H. Castleman, Willis Ragan, H. H. Cabaniss, and J. H. Paine, reads: "Residents and property owners on Peachtree street are requested to meet in the Gate City Guard armory at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, the 7th instant, to consider what action shall be taken in reference to the new electric line proposed to be put on the street."

The south side people will have a meeting too this evening, and have issued a call. It reads:

A meeting of the citizens of Washington street will be held at the chamber of commerce tomorrow evening at 8 o'clock. Every resident and property owner on Washington street is especially requested to attend.

The meeting is called for by Messrs. W. J. Garrett, A. D. Adair, E. W. Marsh, J. G. Oglesby, Jacob Haas, Joseph F. Gatins, W. W. Hulbert and many other residents of the street.

GOING TO THE MARBLE FIELDS

CONTRACTORS STRIKE.

WORK ON THE GRADY HOSPITAL IS STOPPED.

Mr. Hirsch and Captain Lowry Go Out to Raise Money Today—The Fund Is Exhausted.

Mr. Joseph Hirsch announced about two weeks ago that he would make a canvass of the principal streets of Atlanta to complete the Grady Hospital fund. Serious sickness in his family prevented him from doing as he intended then, but he will take it up again this morning. Mr. R. J. Lowry, the treasurer of the association, will go with him, and they mean business.

The fact is that the matter has come to a crisis. It will take $25,000 more to complete the building, and if it is not raised the work will be stopped.

This is shown by the following letter received by Mr. Hirsch:

ATLANTA, Ga., May 5, 1891.—Mr. Joseph Hirsch, Chairman Building Committee, Grady Memorial Hospital—Dear Sir: I learn that the funds for the construction of the hospital are exhausted, and as we have not received payment for April estimate, I am obliged to discontinue work upon the buildings until further instructions from our main office. Yours respectfully,
C. M. TRIPP, Supt.

Something must be done at once. The contractors will not work without pay.

The rest of the money will have to be raised, or the hospital cannot be completed

It is in this emergency that Mr. Hirsch and Mr. Lowry will call on the citizens of Atlanta today.

The money raised so far has been contributed by not more than fifty people. All Atlanta is interested in this hospital. The time for talking has passed. The people will have to act now or see the cherished enterprise fail.

Mr. Hirsch requests THE CONSTITUTION to say that 50 per cent of the subscription has been called, and is payable now to the treasurer, Captain R. J. Lowry.

FROM OUR NOTEBOOKS.

No Prayer Meeting Tonight.—There will be no prayer meeting at the First Methodist church tonight, owing to the meetings at the Gospel tent. The pastor and congregation will take part in those meetings.

Mattie Bassett Released.—Yesterday the grand jury investigated the charges against Mattie Bassett, and there being no evidence to sustain the charges, no bill was found. She was released from custody, and will leave for Chattanooga, today.

The Waites Case.—The evidence in the Waites case was concluded yesterday in the United States circuit court. Mr. Frank Arnold finished his argument for the plaintiff, and Mr. T. C. Jackson began his argument for the defense. He will conclude this forenoon, and will be followed by Colonel W. H. Hulsey, who concludes for the plaintiff.

Sheriff Bramlett's Case.—The case of Sheriff Bramlett, who is in contempt of a state court if he does and in contempt of the federal court if he don't, or vice versa, comes up for a hearing before Judge Newman on the 9th.

It's a peculiar case. The sheriff's only escape from being found in contempt is to resign, it seems.

He has been ordered by the state court to make a levy on the property of the Marietta and North Georgia. If he don't he will be guilty of contempt. The federal court says that if the sheriff makes the levy they will fine him for contempt, for the road is in the hands of a receiver.

An Escaped Convict.—Sam Jones, a negro, was arrested in West End, yesterday, for disorderly conduct. On his ankles were found shackles, the chain joining the two cuffs having been filed off. He is now in the Fulton county jail, and says he escaped from the prison farm of a Captain Smith, near Nashville, Tenn., four months ago. He had been convicted of manslaughter and was sentenced to five years. The negro is a close-built, yellow fellow of twenty-two years; is five feet seven and a half feet high; weight 165 pounds. The Nashville authorities will be informed today.

After Thirty-Three Years.—Colonel Charles I. Graves, of Rome, and General W. W. Kirkland, of New York, met yesterday in the Kimball house for the first time in thirty-three years. They were in the United States Naval academy together, and in 1858 were officers in the Indian squadron of the United States navy. They were close friends, but since that time have been separated. At the outbreak of the war both resigned and entered the confederate army. The meeting yesterday was a glad one, and they spent a long time in telling stories of by-gone days.

Short breath, palpitation, pain in chest, weak or faint spells, etc., cured by Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure. Sold by all druggists.

Two Committees Have Done Handsomely The Other Three Go Out Today—The Library Orders an Alcove.

A good day's work was done for the Armstrong library fund yesterday.

Two of the five committees went out, and in a few hours raised $787. If the other three committees succeed as well today, the fund will be completed by night.

The purchase of the Armstrong collection for the Young Men's Library seems to be assured.

The subscriptions received by the Broad street committee and the committee on Marietta and Peachtree are given below, and the subscriptions received some weeks ago are also given.

This makes $1,462 besides what the Young Men's Library will raise.

The Whitehall street, Pryor street and Alabama street committees will make their canvas today. It is hoped that the matter will be closed up before night.

At the meeting of the Young Men's Library directors last night a committee was appointed to arrange an alcove for the accession, and it was directed that the arch be inscribed with the words, "The Armstrong Collection."

The Library Election.

The annual meeting of the Young Men's Library will occur next Tuesday night, and it is hoped that every member of the association will come. The annual reports will be unusually interesting, and will disclose the rapid progress of the institution. The annual election of officers and directors will occur on the Tuesday following, at the library. The election will be be by ballot and polls will be opened as usual. Mr. Charles Rice, Mr. Lucien Knight and Mr. A. Meyer will be managers.

WATER FOR WEST END.

A Proposition for an Artesian System of Waterworks Will Be Made.

West End wants waterworks.

With belgian blocks down, that growing and progressive suburb desires to take another step upward.

A large artesian well to supply the city with water is contemplated.

Colonel Baum, who drilled the well in Atlanta, will make a proposition to the city council next week.

The council will consider the proposition immediately, and will, likely, decide to adopt that system of waterworks. Mayor Nelms, in speaking of the proposed works, said:

"Our town needs a water supply, and I believe if a suitable proposition for an artesian system is made that the citizens will favor its acceptance."

SO SHE COULD HANG.

Nora Lay Would Rather Hang than Serve Ninety-Nine Years.

Nora Lay, the woman sentenced at Rome to ninety-nine years imprisonment for arson, and who was captured Monday while attempting to escape, was taken from the Cartersville jail yesterday, where she was beingheld. Captain Starnes, of the penitentiary department, who brought her back to the broom factory asked her yesterday:

"Nora, why were you going in the direction of Rome, the place from which you were sent to the penitentiary?"

"For the purpose of killing the woman who told on me, so that I could hang," was the answer.

WOMEN WHO WRITE.

THE GEORGIA WOMAN'S PRESS CLUB IN SESSION YESTERDAY.

The Business That Was Transacted—Two Brilliant Receptions Last Night. Some Personal Points.

The social and business events of the meeting of the Woman's Press Club yesterday marked a page in history which the women of today and of the future will have every reason to feel proud of.

This club gathered from every part of the state women writers who have made, by their talents, energy and fine business qualities, the best reputation for themselves. They gathered together at the Kimball at 10 o'clock yesterday morning for the discussion of business and for mutual pleasure and benefit.

SOME PERSONALITIES.

The president, Mrs. Elia Goode Byington, presided with the dignity and grace so characteristic of her nature.

And here let me say a few words about the woman whom the club has chosen for this important position. Possessed of the rarest executive ability, the utmost energy, and the most thorough business sense, she is one of the few women capable of holding a high lucrative position. To her spirit and tenacity, her unflagging energy and her sympathetic interest in the aims and accomplishments of her sex in her chosen field, the club owes now and will owe in the future much of its growth and prosperity.

Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, as vice president, has proved herself thoroughly energetic and earnest in the work. She made the arrangements for the club's entertainment here, and to her exertions the ladies owe much of their pleasure and comfort.

Miss Minnie Quinn, as secretary and treasurer, has discharged her duties perfectly. With a very attractive personality she combines excellent business sense and tact and a nature thoroughly reliable and capable.

So much for the officers. Among others in that room full of bright, attractive women who took an active part in the club's work, were several that seem to deserve especial mention.

Mrs. Myrick, of Americus, has long been a journalistic writer, and she is now assistant editor with her husband of The Times-Recorder. She is a bright, original, broad-minded woman, and a very capable and versatile one in her journalistic work.

Miss McCutcheon is the editress-in-chief of The Franklin News. She has by her energetic work and clever journalistic ability made her work a thorough success. She is perfectly capable of doing every sort of journalistic work, from type-setting to writing able editorials on current topics.

Miss Dortch, of The Carnesville Register, is another able and clever young lady in journalism. After leaving school, she studied for her profession and went to Baltimore and educated herself, in order to equip herself for her chosen work. She is now owner and editress of the paper she represents, and her ability in every respect is very fine, and she deserves credit and admiration for her energy and talent.

The charter members of the club were Mrs. E. G. Byington, Mrs. Lollie Belle Wylie, Miss Minnie Quinn, Mrs. Maude Andrews Ohl, Mrs. A. P. Penn, Miss Ivy McAfee, Miss Essie McMillan, Miss Mary Pfohl, Miss Rosa Woodbury, Miss Gertrude Bealer, Mrs. W. S. Williams, and Miss Gussie Wylie.

The recently elected members were: Mrs. Walter Gordon, Mrs. M. L. Myrick, Mrs. Carry Brown, Miss Fannie Milikan, Mrs. King, Miss Leonora Beck, Miss Mary L. Jackson, Mrs. B. F. Abbott, Miss Corinne R. Stocker, Mrs. Ethel Hillyer Harris, Miss Helen Dortch, Mrs. G. C. Dury, Miss Eva Carr, Miss McCutcheon, Miss Lula Barnfield, Miss Annie Lardquet and Miss Nora Sheehan.

SOME PAPERS READ.

After the routine business affairs were settled Miss Rosa Woodbury read a bright and very sensible paper on "Woman in Journalism." Mrs. Ohl read a short, interesting article by Miss Eliza Bowen upon Mrs. Hillhouse, the first woman editress in Georgia.

The routine business consisted principally in reading and adopting the constitution and by-laws, and discussing matters pertaining to the club's government and affairs. One of the by-laws provides for elections biennially, so the club's efficient president, vice president and secretary and treasurer will serve another year.

Another business session will be held this morning.

AT MRS. ABBOTT'S.

Mrs. Abbott's reception to the club from 6 to 8 o'clock last evening was characterized by unusual elegance and brilliancy.

The charming host and hostess received and entertained their guests with an ease and grace that made the evening perfect. Those invited to meet the ladies were chiefly the literary people of the city.

Mrs. Alex. Smith, Miss Kendrick, Miss Flora Abbott and Miss Kate Abbott assisted the hostess in receiving.

The drawing rooms were gracefully arranged with palms and ferns, and the delicious refreshments were served from a table laden with roses and lilies.

AT THE GOVERNOR'S.

From Mrs. Abbott's the ladies went to the reception tendered them by Governor and Mrs. Northen.

This was a beautiful and artistic entertainment, and the executive mansion never looked more brilliant than upon this occasion.

The floral decorations were rarely exquisite and artistic. The apartments were adorned by Mr. Burpit, who brought, to grace the occasion, a superb collection of palms just received from tropical climes, and the most gorgeous of roses and hothouse flowers.

The blue drawing room was arranged in green and yellow, the deep bay window being filled in with graceful palms; the mantels and tables were garlanded with milax and Mareschal Neil roses. The corridors and red room were graced with rich bowls and vases of pink roses, while many palms and ferns were reflected in the long mirrors and filled in the niches and alcoves.

Mrs. Northrn received her guests in an elegant toilet of heavy black satin, embroidered richly in jet, made demi-train, finished with point lace. She wore diamond ornaments and carried cream and pink roses.

Miss Northrn wore an elegant gown of palest pink crepe, trimmed with white lace; cream roses.

The hospitality of the governor and his charming wife will always remain a happy memory to those present, and the evening was truly ideal.

Mrs. Northen had invited a large number of prominent Atlanta people to assist in receiving the special guests of the evening, among them Mayor and Mrs. W. A. Hemphill, Hon. and Mrs. John T. Glenn, Hon. and Mrs. R. B. Bullock, Captain and Mrs. Evan P. Howell, Hon. and Mrs. Clark Howell, Colonel and Mrs. I. W. Avery, Colonel and Mrs. B. F. Abbott, Captain and Mrs. W. D. Grant, Judge and Mrs. G. H. Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank P. Rice, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rice, Colonel and Mrs. Dick Dow, Mr. and Mrs. Hoke Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sindall, Mr. and Mrs. Joel Chandler Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Wallace P. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Stanton, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Fontaine, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sciple, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Lowe, Captain and Mrs. R. J. Lowry, Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Smith, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Peel, Dr. and Mrs. R. B. Ridley, Dr. and Mrs. Hugh Hagan, Mr. and Mrs. Wellborn Hill, Mr. Ben Hill, Mrs. Loulie Gordon, Miss Grant, Miss Dooly, Miss Jim Wylie, Miss Sallie Maud Jones, Miss Eula Ketner, Miss Pearl Broyles and others.

Most of these were present, and there were, besides, many friends of the members of the club and admirers of their work who availed themselves of this delightful opportunity to pay their respects to the governor and his wife and their guests.

It was in the blue room that the following delightful programme was carrid out:

Piano solo, "Spanish Dancers," by Mr. Isaac Mayer and Miss Henderson.
Vocal solo, Miss Caine.
Ziether solo, Mr. Langbein.
Violin solo, Mr. Simpson, of Columbus, O.
Vocal solo, Miss Helen Knight.
Recitation, Miss Eula Ketner.
Vocal solo, Miss Congdon.
Vocal solo, Miss Ella Powell.

Wednesday morning the ladies will be driven around the city, visiting all the principal points of interest.

All the artists who added this beautiful feature to the entertainment deserve the highest praise for their parts in the programme.

They had, in the members of the Press Club, the most appreciative and enthusiastic of listeners.

A DRIVE TODAY.

This morning the ladies of "Society," Mrs. Wylie and Mrs. Williams will take the club for a delightful drive over the city.

Picnics! Picnics!

Do you intend going to a picnic this season? We know ofnothing more pleasant than a day in the words with an agreeable party and a dinner by the side of some cool, clear spring, is one of life's greatest enjoyments. Now, it is about the dinner we would especially speak. We have added to our well-filled picnic counter. On it you will find everything that you can want to fill your basket. Our French pates are especially fine and of endless variety. Among them are chicken, grouse, pheasant, quail, woodcock and wild duck, and we have reduced the price to 35 cents per can, so that they are within the reach of every one. Then comes deviled ham and tongue and boned chicken and turkey, always popular and deservedly so.

Lunch tongue is fine, and our chipped beef is thinly sliced and of fine quality. We have the finest of imported French sardines, and the flat cans of salmon steak. Both of these last open with with a key, thus saving trouble and keeping the fish intact in opening.

Then you will like our imported whole herring in one-pound tins, also canned lobster and deviled crabs.

We have a large variety of pickles, both in bulk and in bottles.

Our picnic size of gherkins, mixed, chow-chow and cauliflower at 15 cents per bottle are the leaders. The picklod onions have been reduced to 15 cents per bottle also and will please you.

We have the Boston baked beans in small tins, just the size for a picnic party.

We have also the fruits that you want, fresh Florida oranges, fine bananas and Messina lemons.

As most of the fresh fruits have not come in yet you will find nothing better than our fancy California peaches, peas, white cherries and apricots. They are getting a wider reputation and a firmer hold upon the people every day. If you have not tried them you have certainly missed a treat.

Our Suratoga chips have just come and are crisp and appetizing.

Besides the above you can find everything in fine groceries at our place. Hams, breakfast bacon and tongue always fresh and of the best brands.

Our butter is received every day from the Blue Grass regions of Tennessee, and as the time is now approaching when it is almost impossible to get good butter, come and let us put down your name and send it to you regularly. You will then always have good, pure Jersey butter.

A few very desirable styles of suits are now so nearly all gone that but one or two of a kind remain.

To clear out these broken lots of sizes we have marked them down so that they net us barely cost. Two or three very handsome suits, one a black cheviot, three-button cutaway sack, with patch pockets—a very nobby garment—and the other, a blue-mixed, stylish homespun sack, that were $15 and good value at that, are now $10. Should we be able to fit you in one of them, you'll find it a rare pick-up. It won't be a loss of time to try, anyway. We can always interest you.

You don't often get a chance to make a selection of shirts from such an elegant line of puff-bosomed and Negligees as we are showing this season. Anything from $1.50 in a madras with laundried collars and cuffs to the finer grades in fancy puffs and Botany cloths are here for your assured approval.

FIVE POOR GIRLS

SENT TO THE HOME OF THE GOOD SHEPHERD

By Atlanta's Kind-Hearted, Sympathetic Ladies—The Goff Girls and Three Companions Go to Brooklyn.

Five girls left Atlanta yesterday for the Home of the Good Shepherd in Brooklyn N. Y.

They were the two Goff girls, Mattie Caldwell, Mattie Moncrief and Dora Stanley.

They were sent to the reformatory through the work of the King's Daughters and the Home for the Friendless societies.

The quintette left yesterday morning in charge of Mr. J. C. Carlyle, who will take care of them as far as Savannah, at which place they will take the steamer City of Birmingham for Brooklyn.

The ladies of the two societies who have accomplished this delegated Mrs. E. H. Britton to superintend arrangements, and she did her work well. She lent her best energies to a work which few dare undertake. Until 2 o'clock Monday night she stayed with Dora Stanley, and talked to her of the redemption she could meet. She is a child of sixteen, and is quite pretty.

Mrs. Britton met her in a kindly, Christian manner, and after a soft, sensible talk, the girl burst into tears and expressed her willingness to go to a reformatory school.

The father and mother, who had given up hope of raising their child, were sent for, and a most pathetic scene was the result. The heart-broken mother fell on her knees, and in touching words thanked her Maker that her daughter was to be saved.

Mattie Moncrief is a girl of seventeen. She has a depraved and drunken mother, and was only too willing to leave for a place where she might enter a better life.

The history of the Goff girls is well known, and their delight was most apparent when they started for their new home.

The ladies who have accomplished all this desire to thank the people of Atlanta for their hearty support in the work. They told of the shame and chance of redemption of the poor creatures, and the good people responded with no delay. They especially desire to thank Mayor Hemphill, Chief Connolly and Chief Couch for great assistance rendered.

At the Home of the Good Shepherd these girls will be given a training that is sure to change their lives. They are compelled to stay until the ladies who have them in charge consent for their removal. They are now in for a year, which may be renewed, and probably will be, at the end of that time. They are taught work to suit their inclination and talent, and when released have a way to make an honest livelihood.

There is a case coming before the supreme court which will excite much interest. It is the case of Logan vs. the Western and Atlantic railroad, a suit for damages. THE POLICE PICNIC.

The Atlanta Bobbies Have Their Annual Outing at Lithia Springs.

The Atlanta police force had its annual outing at Lithia Springs yesterday.

At 8 o'clock yesterday morning ten coaches crowded with the monarchs of the peace, their families and their friends, left the union depot over the Georgia Pacific railroad for the springs.

On the grounds music and dancing for the young people, and boat riding and other sports furnished amusement for all.

Besides the contents of well-filled baskets for dinner, a barbecue was provided.

Patrolmen Jeff Whatley and William McDaniel took an involuntary bath in the lake to the great amusement of the crowd.

Nearly the entire force went to the springs, and report that they enjoyed their outing as much as men who had for months patroled the streets could.

At 7 o'clock the train returned to the city, and the patrolmen were ready to again go on duty.

A House Burglarized.—Nathan Scrutcher, an old negro, reported to police headquarters that his house was burglarized yesterday morning about 9 o'clock. Scrutcher says he was away from home at that time, and some one broke open his door with an ax, taking off $10 in money and goods to the amount of $30.

NO BRANCH HOUSE IN ATLANTA.

IN A PRISON OF FLAME.

PASSENGERS ENVELOPED IN A COACH OF LIVING FIRE.

A Crowded Passener Coach on the Central Catches Fire and Is Consumed—Narrow Escape of the Passengers.

"Porter, there's gas in this car!"

It was on the night passenger which left Savannah Monday evening for Atlanta. The train was only about fifteen miles this side of Savannah, running on a straight track and at the rate of thirty-five miles an hour. It was 9 o'clock. The passenger coach just ahead of the handsome, new sleeper was crowded with men, women and children. Suddenly the passengers in all parts of the car commenced sniffing. There was an odor of gas in the car, and, as the porter came through it, it was a New York drummer that exclaimed as above.

One of the gasoline jets in the forward portion of the car had gone out. The porter climbed upon a stool to light it. He removed the chimney and then discovered he had no matches. He reached down for his lantern, and removed the lamp proper from the glass encasement in order to light the jet. The eyes of every one in the car were naturally upon him. He raised his torch. An explosion followed; the porter dropped, and a sheet of flame spread from one end of the car to the others, over the heads of the passengers. In an instant it seemed that every piece of wood in the car was a living flame. The men jumped for the bellrope, and in the excitement literally tore it to shreds. Men rushed to the car doors, and women screamed, as the train sped on, carrying them in a prison of flames.

The train was quickly brought to a halt, but it seemed an eternity to those boxed within the encasement of fire. Before the last passenger had gotten out flames were bursting through the car windows and licking the roof. Many escaped only with their lives, leaving their hand baggage to the flames.

But for the quickness and coolness of the gallant crew the entire train would have been consumed. Conductor Beebe quickly uncoupled the burning car from the others. The front cars were pulled ahead by the engine and the rear sleeper forced back by the combined strength of the men aboard the train. Then the engine ran ahead to the next station, where another passenger coach and the wrecking crew were wired for. There was a delay of about five hours before the iron remnants of the burned coach could be removed.

Fortunately but one man was injured. He was Conductor Cubbage, who was not on duty, but happened to be coming up on the train. In his efforts to aid the passengers and remove the other cars from the burning one, one of his hands was badly burned and his face scorched.

The Central's loss by the fire amounts to about $4,800.

FOURTH OF JULY

Being Looked Forward to with Eagerness by the Colored People.

The negroes are making great preparations for their Fourth of July celebration.

Those at the head of it are Jim Goodlett, Tom Grant, Al Nash, R. J. Henry and Antoine Graves.

The celebration will be held for two days, the 3d and the 4th. Arrangements are being made now, but as yet no programme has been prepared.

An international drill will be one of the most interesting features. There are thirty-three negro companies in the state, and of these about eight are expected to take part. Three more visiting companies from other states will be present. The prizes for this will aggregate $500.

Then there will be horse races both days, and some good runners and trotters will enter. Bicycle races will also serve to enliven the day. Atlanta will furnish two, Augusta four and Macon six of the riders.

Perhaps the best part of the programme will be the contests among the various fire companies present. Four have promised to attend, one each from Athens, Augusta, Macon and Columbus. Others outside of the state will be invited, and it is supposed some of them will accept. It will undoubtedly be an entertaining affair.

A baseball tournament will be held in the meanwhile. Montgomery, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Birmingham, Atlanta and one or two others will participate.

At present those in charge are endeavoring to secure reduced rates on all of the roads leading to Atlanta. They hope to get these rates for five days. Until this matter is arranged the premiums for the contests and exhibitions cannot be determined upon.

In previous years the crowds that have visited Atlanta on the Fourth have numbered several thousand. In view of this attraction and a privilege to remain for five days, fully 30,000, it is thought, will be here.

If the occasion proves successful, next year it will be held for three days, and the following year continue through the week. With the condition mentioned, it will be a permanent institution.

Atlanta will certainly be flooded with the negro element on the glorious "Fo' July."

OLDEST ON RECORD.

The Case of Houston, Treasurer, vs. J. O. Redwine.

Yesterday the case of Houston vs. Redwine was settled.

This is the oldest case on record.

Nearly twenty-five years ago Mr. J. O. Redwine borrowed $600 from a building and loan association. The contract which he signed called for $200 interest, and he paid the principal and interest, which amounted to $800.

But when he thought he had settled the matter with the association he was confronted with the demand to pay $40 a month until he had paid in $4,000.

He refused to pay and the association instituted suit against him.

The case has been tried several times, and has gone through the ordeal of two or three supreme court decisions.

Yesterday, after the case had been before Judge Marshall Clarke for two days, a settlement was agreed upon, in which by the pay men of $300 the association agreed to dismiss the suit.

Mr. Redwine said that the case was unjust but rather than continue the litigation, which has consumed so many years of valuable time, he would pay the money just to get rid of the court.

THE NEW CITY PRISON

WILL BE BUILT ON DECATUR STREET, NEAR CALHOUN.

The Special Committee Has Hard Work to Secure a Location, but Is Now Satisfied.

A new city prison.

Atlanta now seems certain of one.

To most Atlantians, however, the location appears to be a little distant from the union depot.

But Atlanta is now growing with great vigor.

And the union depot is losing its prestige as a common center.

Just now the city needs nothing more than it needs a new city prison. Time and time again it has been shown conclusively that the present building is not only too small, but that it is absolutely a place where illness, disease and death have been produced.

Than Captain English, chairmain of the board of police commission, nor no one knows the exact facts better. For three years he has been working assiduously to secure a new prison for the city. In fact, Mr. English has worked harder to secure a new home for lawbreakers than he has worked for a dozen features which he has secured.

This year he has an able lieutenant in Mr. Woodward, chairman of the committee on public buildings and grounds.

Like Captain English, Mr. Woodward is convinced that a new city prison is an absolute necessity. Early this year he caused the appointment of a special committee, composed by the resolution of the finance committee and the public buildings and grounds committee, the chairman of the police committee, to secure a location for the prison and to provide for the erection of a new building.

The committee has proposed plan after plan, and now that a building site has been selected every member feels better.

"Last year the matter was discussed time and time again," said Mr. Woodward, yesterday, "but nothing could be done. We secured an excellent place on Ivy street, near Edgewood avenue, and agreed to buy it; but people owning property near by kicked, and we had to give it up.

"Then this year," he went on, "the joint committee has had several places under consideration. Every time, however, we have been knocked out. No one knows the trouble we have had in doing the work. We selected this year and secured the Benevolent Home, on Waverly Place, but the aldermanic board killed that. Then every place we tried was opposed."

"Atlanta needs a new prison?"

"Most assuredly That a new and larger station should be built is beyond question. The present place is a foul blot upon Atlanta's fair name, and one that should not be allowed a minute longer than is necessary to erect a new building. People who are arrested for city offenses are not criminals, in any sense of the term. The majority of the arrests made are for disorderly conduct and drinking. Why should they, before trial, be treated worse than a convict in the penitentiary? The state prescribes the number of feet of air for each convict, and if the lessees should crowd their prisoners together as the city is doing their leases would be declared forfeited, and rightfully so. Think of seventy-five or 100 men, women and children being crowded into an illy ventilated room hardly 25x50 feet in size. There have been deaths in this pen, and, probably, from no other cause than from the want of proper air."

"Why not build on the present lot?"

"There has been some talk in favor of building the new station house on the vacant lot in the rear. But I am decidedly opposed to that proposition for various reasons—one is that there is not enough room, and another vital reason is that it would be right against the rear end of the stores and dressmaking places fronting on Whitehall street, which are always filled with ladies, who work in them, and others who are trading or having work done. I have too much respect for them to subject them to the mortification of hearing the profane and ugly language, and, then, too, breathing the unpleasant odors natural to such institutions. Another reason for not locating at that place is its being in the center of a block surrounded by large buildings. This alone would cut off all air getting to it, and it would therefore be a veritable oven."

"Why was the Decatur street location selected?"

"In selecting the location convenience should be taken into consideration. I mean convenience to the location where the largest number of arrests are made. That would naturally carry the station house to Decatur street. Then I believe that Atlanta should have one main or central station located on Decatur street, and two small sub-stations—one located out on Marietta street, and one about Peters street and the Central railroad crossing. I name those three places because seven-eighths of the arrests made in Atlanta are from those three streets and their localities. Decatur street is to Atlanta what Chatham and Thompson streets combined are to New York city. If any trouble should ever occur in Atlanta the chances are ten to one that it will start on Decatur street. If the main or central station is located on that street it will have a tendency to purify it, and therefore be a decided benefit, and close at had in case of trouble. With the two sub-stations erected there will be no necessity of hauling prisoners through the central part of the city in daytime, as they can be carried to the main station early every morning before the people are on the street going to their different callings.

"There is another matter of vital interest to the city, and that is a larger and better stockade in which prisoners have to serve out their sentence. The present place is a disgrace to Atlanta. It was built several years ago, and will not properly accommodate more than about thirty prisoners. That place will not do for Atlanta now. Just think of 125 people being crowded into a building never intended to accommodate more than thirty. Then, too, it has no sewer or water conveniences."

"How will you build after you get the lot?"

"Sell the present building. Then sell the stockade farm. Take the money and build one main station house, and two sub-stations."

"But what will you do for a new stockade farm?"

"Go out of the city further and buy a new stockade farm. The money received from the present sale of the station house and the stockade farm, will be more than will be needed to build the new station house and buy the new farm."

WHY I ADVERTISE.

There are several reasons for it. By so doing I m able to do greater good to a greater number (I am of the number). If a man has a good thing he wants to tell it. Well, I have it, and am willing to tell you and pay for the privilege. Now, is that reason enough?

My treatment of piles, fistula and all rectal diseases, is the result of constant study, verified by daily experience. Now, if you have any of these troubles you have no doubt been told: "I'll have to cut you." I say I won't have to do so, for th reason I know a better way to cure you, and cure permanently. Do you want it? If so, it is within your reach. I have practiced rectal surgery for years exclusively, and treat thousands yearly, and I can give you the latest and best treatment obtainable. No matter what form of trouble you may have I am open to enquiry, either personally or otherwise, and can, perhaps, tell you something you do not know. If this interests you, call on me or write for full particulars. It will cost you nothing, and may save you years of suffering. Respectfully, DR. JACKSON.

ATLANTA DIRT.

LEGAL SALE DAY AT THE COURT-HOUSE.

Valuable Property Sold at Auction by George W. Adair—H. L. Wilson's Auction of Forest Avenue Lots—Other Sales.

Legal sales day, combined with various auctions, made things lively in real estate circles yesterday.

Atlanta dirt grows a safer and more profitable investment every day.

Colonel George W. Adair, before the courthouse door, knocked down some valuable property to the highest bidder yesterday morning.

For Archibald Smith, Jr., executor of Mrs. E. A. Riley, Mr. Adair sold the lot on Jackson street, corner of Morris, to Clem R. Harris for $2,510.

No. 85 Pulliam street, was purchased by T. J. Northen for $805. The lot is 33½x100 feet.

Sale of West End Property.

Real estate in West End is also booming, as witness the results of the sale there yesterday.

The executors of the Dunn estate were gratified and surprised when the totals were footed up at the end of the auction. The property is on Ashby and Oak streets.

Lot No. 1, the finest on the plot, was sold to J. J, Logue for $1,630.

G. J, Dallas bid in lot No. 2, at $1,300, and also, lots 3 and 4 for $1,300, each.

No. 5, an extra large one, and a house, went to E. C. Atkins for $3,950.

Lots Nos. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 were knocked down to Captain E. P. Howell at $1,045 each, or a total of $6,270. These lots all adjoin Captain Howell's property.

Colonel Adair also sold for Mrs. Alice A. Scott, a lot 100 feet wide in the rear of Nos. 6, 7, 8, 9, 10 and 11 to Mr. Howell for $500.

The total sales amounted to $15,750.

At the close of the "dirt" sale, Colonel Adair put up 142½ shares of the Central Real Estate Company's stock, par value $100, which belonged to the estate of the late Henry W. Grady. It was knocked down to Mr. E. Daniels at $70 a share.

A three-room house and lot 50x150 feet, on Hampton, near Exposition street, was sold by N. R. Fowler, auctioneer, yesterday for $830. Four other lots adjoining, 25x100 feet, also went at $170 each.

THE NEW YORK STOCK MARKET.

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, May 5.—The stock market today suffered from the general disposition on the part of the operators in the general list to await the outcome of the railroad meeting in this city tomorrow, and comparative dullness marked the trading, while no material movement was made in prices outside of a few specialties in the hands of the cliques. There was little in trading outside of Chicago gas and St. Paul, although Wheeling and Lake Erie stocks were strong on light transactions, and Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis continued its movement of yesterday during the forenoon. Silver certificates were weaker, and industrials were quite neglected until late in the day, when they became active and weak with the general list. The market opened firm but quiet, and, while a few specialties like Chicago gas, scored material gains, the general market failed to advance more than small fractions beyond the level of the first prices. London sold its specialties, and this precipitated the selling movement by the local operators, which soon wiped out the early gains. The afternoon, however, brought with it the announcement of the further engagement of $1,000,000 of gold for shipment abroad, and selling became general for both sides of account. The large gold shipments are now being attributed to the manipulation of the powerful bear party, as a legitimate demand for it abroad cannot be accounted for. The result of these manipulations, however, is the creation of a large short interest in the market with a considerable borrowing demand for all active stocks in the loan crowd. The selling, [...] was vigorous while the afternoon lasted, [and] losses were suffered in all leading shares, though the final losses for the day are generally confined to fractional amounts. Among specialties, Long Island sold down about 3 per cent this morning, on the death of Mr. Pratt, whose large accumulations of stocks will be divided, and in all probability, will come upon the market. The stock afterward rallied 2 per cent, however. Final dealings were less active, and marked by a quieter tone, but the close was heavy, at about bottom figures. Sales listed of aggregated 268,000 shares; unlisted, 19,000.

Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, May 5—[Special.]—Receipts at the ports today were 11,546 bales against 1,988 last year. These figures have proved too weighty for the traders here, and despite an extreme advance of 3.64 in Liverpool, and sales of 10,000 bales on the spot, the market has been feeble and has repeated its experience of yesterday. At the opening, August sold at 8.96, but under the influence of the causes above mentioned, prices gradually receded, closing easy, one point below yesterday. Cables from Manchester report more doing there, and a decidedly better demand for yarns from spinners. Spot sales in New Orleans are 5,000 bales. Mobile and Memphis are one-sixteenth higher. Liverpool has yet to advance still further, before she will have recovered her former normal and relative position as compared with the American markets. Her ability to do this now is dependent upon the disposition of spinners to continue buying. It seems a question of price versus supply; how far the former disposes the proportion the latter is assuming, is the [...]

problem. The feeling amongst the trade in America is, undoubtedly, that any further advance would probably restrict the free movement, and is not, therefore, to be desired. Reports from the Atlantic states continue to indicate a serious need of rain.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.

CHICAGO, May 5.—Wheat started out weak, made a very respectable showing for the greater part of the session, and then collapsed utterly. It was evident beforg the day closed that the bear crowd had given the market the only strength that it had, and that the bulge was only to shake out troublesome tailers, to entrap more bulls, and to give the bears a chance to get out more wheat at satisfactory prices. The plan worked like a charm. The bulls kept on working until the official closing cables came in, when they all began to throw their wheat overboard. Not only were the London, Liverpool, Paris, Berlin and Antwerp wheat markets in a demoralized condition, but quotations on British Consuls and French Rentes showed that the money markets abroad were little exercised. This created almost a panic, July wheat starting at 99⅞@100¼, against 100½ at the close yesterday, and sold up on early bullish reports to 101¾ with very little reaction. The bulls felt secure in the face of a decline of 14c per bushel within the last two weeks. Then the bears began to unload; prices broke to 101, halted and dropped to 100, and then slumped on bearish cable reports and a bear raid to the lowest point of the day—97½—closing at 97⅝@¾. A great deal of wheat held on narrow margins and stop-loss orders was thrown over in the closing minutes.

Corn was depressed early by the immense receipts for this time of the year, 885 car loads, besides 3,000 bushels by canal and by the fact that at Liverpool the prices were 3 pence lower, then rallied with wheat and because of the estimates of but 330 cars for tomorrow, and finally broke with wheat and because of the sales by the bear crowd.

Weakness in corn, heavy receipts and sales of a line of long property caused an early break in oats, July opening at 46½, sold off to 45½, and then on good buying, rallied to 47½, but it sawed off later and closed at 46¼.

Prices of provisions was the highest at the opening and the lowest at the close. The net result of the day's trading show a loss for July option of 60c in pork; 10c in lard and 17½c in ribs as compared with the closing prices of yesterday.

The leading futures ranged as follows in Chicago today:

Good Advice for May.

Impure blood is the source of more troubles than any other cause. The blood circulates through the whole body; if pure, it builds up; if impure, it breaks down. The best way to prevent disease, therefore, is to purify the blood. For this purpose a great many physicians have recommended

SMITH'S BLOOD SYRUP.

All who have ever tried it pronounce it the best. It cures scrofula, eczema, erysipelas, tetter, skin diseases and all disorders of the liver and kidneys. Mrs. Emma Stafford: "It cured me of cancer of the nose." Henry Bennett: "It has greatly benefited me." Price, $1 per bottle. Prepared by

LARGE DELEGATION.

ATLANTA WILL BE WELL REPRESENTED AT LOUISVILLE

When the Members of the Scotch-Irish Society Meet—The Programme of the Exercises There.

The third Scotch-Irish congress will be held in Louisville, Ky., May 14th to 17th.

The Atlanta Scotch-Irish Society has 150 members and is rapidly increasing.

The society is entitled to one delegate for every five members, and Atlanta will be represented in the congress by fully thirty delegates.

The following gentlemen have been appointed delegates and have signified their intention to attend the congress: Mr. W. Hugh Comer, Mr. G. W. Adair, Captain G. B. Forbes, Mr. A. J. McBride, Captain H. F. Hawks, Mr. A. P. Stewart, Mr. F. H. P. Bloodworth, Mr. Hooper Alexander, Mr. D. O. Stewart, Mr. James Mitchell, Mr. Walter G. Cooper, Dr. K. C. Divine, Mr. James L. McWhorter, Mr. C. F. Anderson, Rev. Henry Quigg, Mr. T. G. Saunders, Mr. R. H. Wilson, Mr. Sam Barnett, Mr. A. E. Calhoun, Hon. L. F. Livingston, Mr. A. J. West, Judge W. L. Calhoun and Dr. A. E. McGarity.

Other delegates will be added to the list until all the membership of the society is represented.

At first twenty delegates were chosen, but the growth of the society now entitles it to further representation.

The delegates will go on a special Pullman palace car, which will leave the union depot at 7:30 o'clock on the morning of the 13th of May, via the Western and Atlantic railroad, and will arrive in Louisville the following morning at 2:27 o'clock.

Several ladies will accompany the delegates to attend the general exercises of the congress.

The Society—Its Organization.

The Scotch-Irish Society of America was organized in May, 1889, at Columbia, Tenn. Its growth in members and influence has been almost unprecedented, and it is now one of the strongest organizations of that character in America.

The society is strictly non-partisan and non-sectarian, its principal objects being the collection of material for a history of the Scotch-Irish, the inculcation of the characteristic principles of the race and the cultivation of fraternal feeling.

The Atlanta delegation will make a strong effort to have Atlanta selected as the place for holding the next congress.

Mr. Robert Bonner, president of the society, and others prominent in the society, it is said, will favor Atlanta.

Exercises at Louisville.

The general exercises of the congress will be held in the Masonic Temple theater, a fine auditorium situated in the heart of the city. Two sessions per day, morning and evening, will be held there. The programme will consist of the addresses by the distinguished orators, whose names and subjects are given below, and of appropriate music, afforded principally by the Goshen Cornet band, celebrated for its rendition of Scotch and Irish airs. The business meetings of the society will be held during the afternoons, and at a place to be designated at the time. The exercises of the society proper will close Saturday evening.

The local committee, however, has arranged for visiting clergymen to preach in the various churches of the city on Sunday morning, the 17th, and on the evening of the same day, for an old-time Scotch-Irish religious service at the great auditorium of Louisville, capable of seating 4,000 people. This will be a great religious mass meeting in which all the churches will participate. Dr. S. M. Hamilton will preside and Rev. Dr. John Hall, of New York, will preach the sermon of the occasion.

The first speaker of the occasion will be Hon. Simon B. Buckner, governor of Kentucky, who will deliver the address of welcome. Then will follow in the order yet to be designated, Hon. A. E. Stevenson, of Bloomington, Ill., on "The Scotch-Irish of the Bench and Bar" Rev. Stuart Acheson, Toronto, Canada, on "The Scotch-Irish in Canada;" Mr. Alexande Montgomery, of San Francisco, on "The Pioneers of California;" Dr. John S. MacIntosh, of Philadelphia, Pa., on "Our Pledge to Posterity," "The Scotch-Irish of Today and Tomorrow;" Judge O. P. Temple, of Knoxville, Tenn., on "The Scotch-Irish of East Tennessee;" Dr. J. H. Bryson, of Huntsville, Ala., "Scotch-Irish Influence in the Formation of the Government of the United States;" Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Lexington, Ky., on "Scotch-Irish Statesmanship." Besides these, addresses will be delivered on subjects not yet announced, by Mr. Henry Watterson, of Kentucky; Colonel A. K. McClure, of Philadelphia; Colonel J. F. Johnston, of Birmingham, Ala.; Dr. Thomas Murphy, of Philadelphia, Pa.; Dr. John Hall, of New York, and other distinguished orators. Many of these will make short and informal speeches.

Belfast, Ireland, the greatest of Scotch-Irish cities, will send Francis D. Ward, president of her board of trade, to represent her at the congress. Other Irish cities will also be represented.

A State Society.

Sometime early in June the Atlanta society will inaugarate a movement looking to the organization of a Scotch-Irish society for the state. A meeting with that end in view will be held in Atlanta, at which leading men of Scotch-Irish decent from different parts of the state will deliver addresses.

B. B. and B. B. S.—These may seem a puzzle, but they stand for Bile Beans and Bile Beans Small, both good for Bilious, Dyspeptic people, but the latter specially adapted for children and adults with delicate palates.

The National Capital.

In the patriotic breast of every American sovereign there is a yearning desire to behold at some time or other the capital, with its grand, unrivaled capitol, of his own mighty republic, and to visit the Shenandoah valley, Martinsburg, Harper's Ferry, Potomac Banks, all famed historic cities and landmarks in the history of our country. Washington is justly called the "city of magnificent distances." Our whole empire is a land of magnificent distances, and we, ourselves, true children of our mother country, are accustomed to travel by magnificent strides, and it may be reckoned one of the greatest boons afforded us that we can travel so safely, so comfortably and enjoy such scenes and sights as the great net of railway constantly affords us; where few equal and none surpass the advantages and inducements offered by the "Picturesque B. and O."

The scenery as the train crosses the Alleghany mountains, familiarly known as the "Switzerland of America," is most beautiful at this season of the year, when nature dons her summer verdure and the air is fragrant with the perfume of the pines and wild flowers.

The Baltimore and Ohio system offers unequaled facilities to the traveler. Its through trains are all vestibuled from baggage car to Pullman sleeper, and heated by steam from the engine. Pullman buffet drawing room sleeping cars of the latest design and most sumptuous appointments are run through between St. Louis, Cincinnati and New York, via Washington, Baltimore and Philadelphia. No extra fare is charged for fast time on limited vestibuled trains.

Through tickets and full infomation can be procured at leading ticket offices throughout the country or by addressing the general passenger agent B. and O., S. W. R. R., Cincinnati, Ohio.

THE STATE CLOSES

IN THE CASE OF THE STATE AGAINST ELISHA A. UNDERWOOD.

The Defense Will Introduce Its Testimony This Morning, and the Case Will Probably Go to the Jury Today.

The trial of Elisha A. Underwood, for the murder of Alex Sayre, was resumed yesterday morning.

The jury was completed soon after the noon recess, and is as follows:

Lewis G. Kirby, John C. Kennedy, W. R. Spinks, W. P. Mitchell, W. J. Collins, J. E. Lyons, O. L. Carmichael, Frank C. Wheat, Thomas H. Kitchens, George Young, Harry C. Cassin and Charles H. Smith.

The state introduced but four witnesses for the prosecution.

The first was L. J. Duggar, brother of Mrs. Sayre, the wife of the man who was killed. His testimony was about the same as that before the coroner's jury. He told how the two men came home together, both under the influence of liquor, and how the dispute arose at the table, which was followed by the shooting.

Dr. Stephens was next examined, and he testified as to the cause of the death of Sayre, which was brought about by two pistol shots.

Sergeant Ozburn, of the police force, who was among the first to arrive on the scene, was put on the stand and told what he knew of the sad tragedy.

Then Mr. Quinn, who was with the arresting party when Underwood was arrested, was the fourth witness, and after he told his story the state closed.

Nothing new was developed in the evidence for the state, and it remains for the defense to introduce the sensational features.

The case will be taken up again this morning, and it is understood that the defense will introduce very few witnesses, but there may be some sensational developments.

The case will probably go to the jury today, and the question of life and liberty, or death or imprisonment, will be settled between the state and the man charged with murder.

It is advisable to always keep Sanodine in the house, as it is valuable for eruptions and skin diseases of both man and beast.

The "Ouija."

(We-ja), patented 1890. Most wonderful invention of the nineteenth century. Baltimore and all the cities of the United States are wild over it. A game and a puzzle. $500 for solution of the mystery. A mysterious parlor game.

This most interesting and mysterious talking board has awakened great curiosity wherever shown.

It surpasses in its results second sight, mind leading or clairvoyance.

It consists of a small table placed upon a large board containing the alphabet and numerals. By simply resting the fingers of two persons upon the small table it moves, and to all intents and purposes becomes a living, sensible thing, giving intelligent answers to any question that can be propounded.

Wonderful as this may seem, the "Ouija" was thoroughly tested and the above facts demonstrated at the United States patent office before the patent was allowed.

Price only $1.50 and $2. You cannot make a better present than the "Ouija."

For sale by John M. Miller, No. 31 Marietta street. tf

Reputation.

Thh reputation of a man is made up of what people say of him. In like manner the reputation of a medicine depends on what they, who have used it, say. No remedy in existence has so good a reputation as B. B. B. (Botanic Blood Balm). It is a successful physician's prescription, and quickly cures both mild and terrible cases of bad blood.

Dr. L. A. Guild, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "William Sealock, living on my place, had an ugly running ulcer on his arm, which ordinary remedies failed to control. As a last resort I placed him on a use of B. B. B. and the ulcer began to heal at once, and effected an entire cure. It is a remedy well worthy of confidence."

Dr. J. E. Hall, druggist, at Americus, Ga., writes: "A planter near this place had several of his best laborers affected with syphilis. He got them B. B. B. and pronounces them all well. A gang of A. P. and L. railroad hands use B. B. B. with great benefit to counteract the effects of swamp malaria." fri sun wed

A CONFEDERATE REUNION.

The Unveiling of the Confederate Monument at Jackson, Miss., June 2d.

The unveiling of the confederate monument at Jackson, Miss., on the 2d of June will be the occasion of a grand reunion of old confederate soldiers from all parts of the country.

General Gordon, as general of the United Confederate Veterans, has been invited to hold the annual reunion there during the 2d and 3d, and has accepted the invitation.

Special arrangements have been made with the railroads. Cheap transportation will be given, and the occasion will be celebrated by imposing ceremonies.

"We have sent out notices to the camps all over the north and south," said General Clement A. Evans yesterday, "and very large numbers are expected. Speeches will be made by many of the most noted confederate officers, and altogether it will be one of the grandest reunions ever held in this country. The monument is said to be very handsome and costly. General William Henry, the mayor of Jackson, writes that extensive preparations have been made for the occasion."

Quite a large delegation, it is understood, will go from Atlanta.

Little foxes of expense—lamp chimneys—they cost a trifle apiece; but they break so!

That is a needless extravagance. There are chimneys that do not break; they cost no more at your dealer's than brittle ones, if he has them; and he will get them if you insist.

Brittle chimneys make double appeal to a dealer's cupidity. Cost is almost nothing and sales are constant.

Tough chimneys cost more at wholesale, but not enough more to compel a higher price. The dealer loses the difference. Then they last indefinitely. It takes a bright man to see his advantage in selling them. "Pearl-top" chimneys, made by Macbeth & Co., Pittsburgh, are tough.
